

Tea on Shipboard

ELEANOR DEAR:

As you are contemplating on that long ailed-of trip to Norway this summer, I know you will be interested to learn that our former school friend, Molly Anderson, and her sister are going to make the trip, and I think it would be perfect if you could go along and attend to just the party.

Molly you know, has just returned from Germany where she spent the winter. She has some interesting photographs one she gave me of herself taken on shipboard. I am sending you some suggestions of what would be well to wear on your voyage.

Molly said the frocks came directly from Paris. They are delightful are they not?

I am told nearly all the women wore white & roses, but it appears that in the picture four different materials are represented.

Molly wears white serge made over a one piece model. She cut the skirt out in a four skirt model with a seam across the center of the front and back. It buttons on to off him with large circles but one which are tied on the blouse also.

The blouse front as you can see is cut in rather an odd manner, it is 3 1/2 in. running from the shoulder to the line of the neck and it's 1 1/2 in. with the edge lace.

A circular collar of alternate bands of black and white lace or pearl chiffon. Arms under the point and fastened down underneath.

Three tiny pin backs are tied on the sleeve fast at the bend of the elbow and these have a button on each. The cuffs are of black chiffon.

On her head is a close-fitting turban of rose colored chiffon.

Quite the neatest thing, she says, to wear in the steamer chair— you can lean back with no fear of crushing the hat.

Her friend wears a red silk, cream-colored rayon, made with a wide band turned over collar, finishing in a V front, over which she wears a white lace and linen collar.

This blouse is short-waisted and made with a hip-length plumb cut away in front and joined to the bodice with a plumb cut away in back.

Sleeves are plain, save for the wide folded back cuffs.

The distinctive feature on the back is large buttons covered with the material, with a form of the own its entire front.

Her hat is a cap set out the front, it is a batiste fabric.

With the pink fabric and a decorated crownband of taffeta surrounded by a width of small pink ribbons.

In the background of the picture one girl wears a pink skirt of lace, a doublet of pleated lines with lining covered with a pink fabric, a pink belt with a pink bow, a pink circle lace trim with a wide lace center trim. I think about 10 buttons with a band of piped taffeta made with a pink fabric.

One of the girls wears a green dress.

For me, I am so soon back. With affection,

HADGE

ON, July 6.—The tariff commission issued a valuable memorandum on the economic position of Ireland, relation to tariff reform, in some of the effects of the Home Bill are pointed out. The conclusion is to come to is that: view of the serious disturbances economic interests of the United States as a whole, which the measure brings about; in view also of the changes these interests both in Great Britain and Ireland of the free trade, the only possible conclusion is the solution of the economic problem: both countries is to be found maintenance of free trade between Great Britain and Ireland and the use of one tariff for the United States, preferred to the overvaluation of the crown." The diminution of free trade on industry is clearly shown. While population of Ireland fell from 8,134,000 to 4,45,000 in 1901, or 46 per cent., the number employed in manufacturing industries fell in the same years from 989,000 to 339,000, or 66 per cent. Commenting on this decline memorandum says:

ENCOURAGING INDUSTRY.

"The secret of the British fiscal system is responsible for so much decline of Irish agriculture and, if it would be possible to give encouragement to Irish industries in those of the rest of the Kingdom."

Present conditions in Ireland are favorable to the creation of tobacco and industries, and it would be the duty of the government to encourage in various ways, as well as the shipbuilding, woolen, boot and furniture and other industries have or have had a substantial increase in Great Britain, there is some recovery in agriculture of years, but taking a 50 years' survey, it is seen that in no part of the Kingdom has the decline of agriculture been more marked than in Ireland.

PARIS, July 6.—When Mme. Grandjean died three years ago at the age of 75, she left the bulk of her fortune, which amounted to $180,000, to the Paris Poor-Law Board, but she had not a hair for her fellow creatures only. She was very fond of animals, too, and to her house near the Beaujon Hospital was attached a big yard, in which she kept about 180 birds of different kinds as well as half a dozen rabbits and seven horses.

The good old lady could not bear the idea that any of these animals should suffer by her death, so, to insure their well care for she committed them to the charge of the man who had been tending them, providing him with a liberal allowance to stimulate his zeal.

Thus she directed that, besides the enjoyment of an annuity of $400 she should receive every year $240 for the keep of the birds, $10 a month for that of each of the seven horses, and $2 a month for his attention to the comfort of a parrot which was a great pet.

Everything went on smoothly until, when the man who had been thus favored took legal action against the general will to whom the general use of these animals had been bequeathed by Mme. Grandjean. He asks that this gentleman may be deprived of this enjoyment on the plea that he prevents him from doing his work as it ought to be done. What the general use of the animals may consist of does not appear.

YACHT WOOGING IS SORRY FAILURE

Sea Trip Planned to Give Falconer Chance to Court Ends Sadly.

Mrs. William Leeds Tires of Suitor and Leaves the Vessel.

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)

(By PAUL PIERRE RIGNAUX.) PARIS, July 6.—News has just reached Paris that the Duke and Duchess of Manchester's party, which sailed away so gaily from the sunny shores of the Mediterranean last spring, went all to pieces in flowery Japan.

It will be remembered that the Ducal host and hostess were not the principal figures in that interesting yachting party Mrs. William E. Leeds, the wealthy widow of a New York banker, was the real heroine, and Lord Falconer, son of the Earl of Kintore and Quondam, aspirant to the hand of Mrs. Agnew-Chapman-Van Valkenberg, was the hero. Sir Francis Lassalles was of the party by way of chaperone. The Duke and Duchess had hoped to make a marriage between the impetuous Lord Falconer and the wealthy widow and where could the wooing be done more discreetly and effectively than in the yacht "Semiramis," which belonged to Anthony Drexel.

But in this case the course of love did not run smooth; for on reaching Yokohama the widow thought she was bored and made a bee-line for Paris and the whole party went to pieces on the sunny shores of Japan. Mrs. Leeds traveled back by the Trans-Siberian Railroad, but not with any companion of the party.

FAILED TO SEE HER.

Lord Falconer passed through Paris a few days ago on his way to London but he did not see Mrs. Leeds, who had been called to Paris by the illness of her father. The Duke of Manchester is now on the steam yacht Warrior near Castellane and the Duchess is believed to be in Tanderragen Castle, Ireland. Never was a yachting party more disrupted or a courtship cruise more completely wrecked.

"The Knight of the Five Lots." The phase is that of Duchess Anna Gould de Talleyrand and he at whom it has been flung so contemptuously is Count Boni de Castelane, her former husband. She mockingly bids his well-known poverty, and this is the way the plucky, strong-willed little Duchess of Castellane, though Count Boni, The Count, who is a model father, though he was not a bountiful good husband, sees his children once a week. During that day he gives them an excellent time and the three boys, Antoine, Boni and Jayson, re-enter the marble mansion in the evening talking about their papa. They talk of him all the week. They speak of "poor papa, who denies us nothing, that he has not a soul."

WOULD DODGE IT.

This is rather disagreeable conversation for the Duchess, who is thus being "driven" for her affection to the 2-year-old son of Prince de Sagan and by way of getting even with Count Boni for teaching his three boys to talk about their father all the time, even in the presence and to the ill-concealed chagrin for their step-father, the Duchess publicly refers to Boni as "the knight of the five lots."

Count Boni's latest reply to his wife's sneer at his poverty has been to give a big dinner on the roof of the Meurice Hotel. His guests were the Ambassador to Italy, Madame Litton, the Princess di Ligni, his brother and sister-in-law, Countess and Count Jean de Castelane, the Infante Don Louis of Spain, Count and Countess Bourbon-Chalus, Count de Gabia, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Carroll of San Francisco, Count de Jarnac and the Countess and Count de Beaumont.

SHOCK BLUDGOES.

During the dying week of the Paris season's festivities, the Infante Don Louis Ferdinand, son of the Infanta Eulalia and grandson of the Queen Isabella, has shocked and outraged the old Faubourg families by dancing the Tango, the Grizzly Bear, Bunny Hop and other modern dances with their papa. The patrician prince and his daughter Duchessa have demanded indignantly that their ballroom shall not be turned into gathering place for American hoppers.

While they inquired where Eulalia and son had learned such unseemly dances, there is a shrewd suspicion that he attended some of the smart routs of Mrs. Amy Crocker-Gouraud and his son was coached by her friend, M. De Max, who is an agent at the new dances.

And how Don Louis Ferdinand inherits his frankness from the maternal and grand maternal side, for Eulalia is a vivacious dancer and a vivid skater and the Court of Madrid was never so lively as when Isabella resigned in Spain.

GIRL MUSICIAN ENDS LIFE AT RECEPTION

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)

BUCHAREST, July 6.—Mlle. Virginia Davidi, a French society favorite, only 22 years old, committed suicide under mysterious circumstances last week.

A reception was being held that night at her mother's house, and Mlle. Davidi seemed particularly happy.

She was a good musician, and being asked to play, readily consented. After a brilliant rhapsody she went into the next room and returned with a glass, the contents of which she drank off while the guests were still applauding.

She then resumed her playing, but after a few chords sank dying to the floor.

Miss Mabel Russell (Mrs. Stanley Rhodes) made her reappearance on the stage in George Edwardes' new play at Daly's theater, London. Miss Russell had been advised to take up an active life by her medical adviser. It will be remembered that she was in a motor accident which resulted in the death of her husband and in serious injury to herself.

HERE'S VAUDEVILLE BILL FIT FOR THE KING

LONDON, July 6.—The program for the command performance given at the Palace Theater on July 1 contained the very best talent. Not only were the leading artists of this country to appear but the world-famed variety performers from other lands were included. The full list was:

Charles Aldrich, quick change artist and comic conjurer.

Borgny's "Lunatic Bakkers," acrobats, Willie Bard, comic singer.

H. G. Chirgwin, the "White-Eyed Kafir," one of the oldest music hall artists.

Crispi and Farren, eccentric dancers.

Cinguole, juggler.

David Devant, conjurer.

Fanny Fields, Dutch comedian.

Barclay Gamon, humorist at the piano.

Alfred Lester, sketch artist.

Claesi Loftus, mimic.

Le Pla, dancer.

Harry Launder, Scotch comedian.

John St. Polis, the "King of Comedy."

Charles Tannenbaum, comedian.

Frank Tracy, comedian.

W. H. Tracy, comedian.

George Vasey, male impersonator.

Harry Tate, in one of his sketches.

Little Tich, comedian.

The final item, entitled "Variety's Garden Party," was a tableau in which a large number of variety artists will appear.

It can be imagined that the program had not been made up without difficulty and the committee made the following announcement:

"It is obvious that there are many artists whom the committee would gladly have seen in the program, but it would be impossible to include everyone with an article claim to selection in an entertainment of limited length. The honor of all is not lost to those artists who will appear in the picture music hall program."

GERMAN PRISONERS REPORTED HELD BY MOORS

BERLIN, July 6.—The news that several prominent Germans are prisoners in the hands of the Moors has created a grave impression in diplomatic circles.

Fears are entertained that Germany will seize upon this fact as a pretext for fresh interference in Morocco, which is the last thing desired in the interests of the peace of Europe.

The Orient Express, in which traveled Baron Marschall von Bleibenstein, the new ambassador to Great Britain, was forced to stop for two hours during the return fire at Tripoli, as it was feared that the Moors would dart across the track and engulf the train.

The ambassador became impatient at the delay, and gave orders that the train rushed through the danger area at full speed. All went well, the train being hardly scorched.

So strong was the aversion of a young Bavarian woman that when the cruel Moors had just captured her she chose instant death or a kiss and reunion with him, she did not hesitate to choose the former.

The scene was witnessed in the principal thoroughfare of Geneva, where Madame von Weissenfels, who is but 20 was returning with two girl companions from a factory where they were employed as polliniers of precious stones. The Moors had encountered them and demanded of her that she should either kiss him and go back to live with him or die.

The woman calmly replied that she preferred death, whereupon Weissenfels pulled out a revolver and fired at her three at short range, and then shot himself in the head. It was raining during this scene.

Women knelt on the muddy pavement and tended their dying friend.

The wife, who leaves a baby a month old, expired before the arrival of a doctor. The husband is expected to recover.

Max Hager, aged 10 years, was found in an exhausted condition on the railway line near Frankfort. On recovering consciousness he said that he came from Zurich, where he had last seen his mother. There had been great excitement at the station and she had joined him to follow her. He saw her getting into a carriage, but was hindered from approaching it before the train whisked off. With the desire to obey his mother faithfully, he had jumped on the track and followed the train walking and running by turns for two miles down. Max prepared continuing his journey to Ravensburg, where he said his mother would be waiting for him. His condition would not allow of this, but he continued on to those cities who will appear to the floor.

CZAR GETS BAD ATTACK OF 'FEVER'

Ruler of Russia Succumbs to "Americanitis" on Ball Diamond.

Plays Game With Golden Sphere and Mono-grained Bat.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 6.—The Czar Nicholas is the latest notable to succumb to "ball fever." In his youth his imperial majesty was fond of athletics until his health failed and physicians prescribed milder exercise. Then he took to rowing and riding, and for a time was an enthusiast in the English game of cricket. One of the gifts which he received on his birthday, a little over a week ago, was a baseball set, handsomely mounted and with the imperial monogram done in gold on the handle of the bat. Next day the Czar had a diamond laid out within the palace grounds and tried his hand at batting and pitching. He did well for a novice and enjoyed the play immensely.

The son of the Gaikwar of Baroda, who learned to play baseball among other things, while in school in the United States, sent up a diamond which was in St. Petersburg a couple of months ago. He is now carrying the name of the game with him in Oxford, in England, where he is continuing his Occidental studies. The Indian prince is a good all-around athlete. In his first Oxford cricket match he tallied 92 not out, in little more than an hour, thus proving that a baseball player can handle an English cricket bat with little trouble. The ball net now being used by the Czar was the gift of the Gaikwar's son.

NEW REGIME ENTERED.

The old regime of petty despotism is dead and gone forever in Russia. While some of the St. Petersburg correspondents still fill their dispatches with accounts of outrages committed against peasants, industrial operatives and others, they are curiously silent when it comes to the swift punishment meted out for all such offenses. Usury always dies hard, and the Russian government deserves some credit for the earnestness and consistency with which it is endeavoring to protect the hitherto oppressed and convince the local authorities that the regeneration of Russia on a liberal and constitutional basis is real.

Here is an incident which shows both sides of the medalion. Colonel Lille, of the military staff at Kieff, took a party of friends after supper to the local Apollo music hall. There he had a private room and engaged a pianist to amuse them. At a late hour, when the pianist had worn his wrist and fingers out, playing all the pieces he could think of, the colonel demanded that a certain march, which he described, should be played. The musician regretfully explained that he did not know it and so could not play it without having the music. The colonel drew his sword and ran the pianist through the neck, killing him instantly. The party then left the theater. Owing to the rank and influence of the perpetrator of this crime the local authorities tried to hush the matter up, but it was reported to the officers of the Douma and to the Russian minister of justice. At once an investigation was made. The colonel was arrested, tried and condemned to death, and the officials who had tried to screen him were removed from office and punished, though they deserved to be. Cases of this sort are giving the Russian people a confidence in the justice and power of the new regime which promises well for the country.

WALKED BACK HOME.

Awaking in his coffin as the earth was about to close on him forever, a wealthy Polish landowner named Banny had a narrow escape from being buried alive at Baturice. He had fallen down in a fit three days before, and as there is no doctor in the neighborhood, a veterinary surgeon who was called pronounced him dead and gave a certificate of death from asphyxia. A large number of his relatives were present at the funeral, and, in accordance with the local custom, after the coffin had been lowered into the grave and the final blessing given by the priest, they began themselves to shovel the first spadefuls of earth. This apparently aroused the supposed dead man from his trance, for faint cries for help were heard from the coffin. Most of the bystanders ran away in panic, but the more sensible immediately helped the priest open the coffin. Banny was unconscious, and, after a resuscitative had been administered and he had been helped out of the coffin, was able to walk home with a borrowed overcoat over his grave clothes.

SIR ALEXANDER (GEORGES) AND LADY ALEXANDER.

WHO THEY ARE

Sir Alexander (Georges) and Lady Alexander are shown with some of the cutest children. Sir George is a London actor and connected with the municipality of that city. He is an ardent worker for his city's welfare, and has appeared in London in such pieces as "Le Volant" and "La Seconde Madame Anguieray," a play which was afterwards accorded the distinction of a production at the Odeon in Paris.

The above portrait, which is published for the first time, depicts the consort of the young and versatile King Alfonso of Spain. The Queen by her gracefulness and personal charm has won the hearts of all her subjects and is one of the most popular royal ladies in Europe.

Our snapshot shows Herr Oscar Straus, the famous Viennese composer, arriving in England to conduct his beautiful music in "A Waltz Dream" and "The Chocolate Soldier" have made these operettas famous all over the world, conducted last Monday the first performance of a new work called "The Dancing Viennese," which was successfully produced at the London Coliseum. This new operetta is in two scenes and is acted by a number of leading lights of the Viennese light opera stage.

Duchess Von Hohenberg is the amaranthine wife of the Archduke Franz Ferdinand, heir to the Austrian throne. The duchess, who is seen above, is played by J. Gurney Fowler, chairman of the recent flower show at Chelsea, is very well known in European society, and during the season spends much time in London.

RUSSIA TIGHTENS ITS GRIP ON MONGOLIA

ST. PETERSBURG, July 6.—Russia's grip on Mongolia and Northern Manchuria is rapidly tightening to a stranglehold. Natives are being drilled and drummed into Muscovite militia and anti-Chinese feeling among the Mongolians is being used as a lever by means of which Russia can pose as the friendly mediator between both parties. In official circles there is no secret seems to be made of the fact that Russia intends to continue her hold on the Oriental seaboard south of Siberia, which was gained by the Russo-Japanese war. A Russian school for Mongolian children has just been opened at the city of Urga, at the expense of the Mongolian government. By way of encouraging the pupils, each year will receive a fixed weekly payment.

The Khakassian district has been wiped out from a murderous attack by armed brigands. The miscreants began by shooting in the head of a laborer who refused to lead them to the house of his master. They then entered the home of a German colonist named Braun. The master himself was away, but his wife a woman of forty and his sons and daughters were at home. In reply to the demands that threats of the brigands Madame Braun gave them $16 and all the keys of the house, and the elder daughter gave them six shillings and her necklace.

The robbers, however, continued to demand more money, so the mother again gave them six shillings and her necklace.

The Smile As An Aid To Beauty

By Lillian Russell

"Get Into the Habit of Smiling. Practice It Daily Just As You Would Memorize a Verse. It Is Wonderful How Good NATURED You Will Become."

Some women cultivate a placid look, thinking that it will make them appear younger. Just the opposite is true.

BY LILLIAN RUSSELL.

(Copyright, 1912, by Lillian Russell.) HAVE written much on the subject of smiling, but I cannot say enough.

To express the beautiful in life, spiritually and physically, to read on higher development and to observe the hints for the toilet is to restore health, renew youth, to make the woman of 40 more fascinating than the girl of 18 and to give constant expression to life as it should be.

The beginning of beauty is in the smile, so smile, smile until you laugh. Every morning when you are at your mirror smile until you force yourself to laugh. Perhaps it's the first time you have smiled for months. Relax your face muscles, loosen up the cords of the heart and enjoy one good laugh. I see so many women who look as if they had not smiled in years. Some women take on the habit of a placid face, thinking that it will keep them young in appearance; that is just the opposite to the truth. A woman's genuine healthy smile is irresistible and fascinating to man, woman, and child.

Doubtless you are smiling while you read, laughing with your eyes at least, and beautiful they are. I am sure, for one may hide one's face behind a book or a fan, all but her eyes, yet you know she is smiling from a good feeling away down inside that bubbles up into her eyes. So the only way to have beautiful, expressive eyes is to be honest and happy inside.

Practice Smiling as a Duty.

Get into the habit of smiling, practice it daily, just as you would learn a poem to recite, a little every day as a duty. Then compare your old every day face with your new one and mark the difference. Now your new smiling face is becoming to you, so you are going to put it on the moment you arise in the morning.

It's wonderful how good natured you will become. You can't afford with that smile on your face. You just have indigestion and smile. That simple smiling now cures many diseases.

Of course, we all have troubles, but we must smile over a pain of roses, we would tire of them if that were the case. Every good thing we have in this world we must repay with gratitude, and smiling attitude at those. So our thoughts must be free from revenge, resentment, and malice.

The smile must be from within, from a loving person. No smile can last far and no sarcasm can last the smile. Smiles are sneers and you are obeying the commandment of Christ. Life is joy and pleasure, you can sweep the room a hundred fold. You can help others through the world by a smile.

The girl who comes along with a cloudy face impeded every little once in a while with jealousy, sulkiness, sarcasm, and disappointment does not realize the harm these moods do. She fancies that her face will readily fall back into nice sweet lines. It does, to be sure, for a while. But in a short time the lines become more and more pronounced. It is utterly impossible to have a sour heart and a sweet, pretty, sympathetic face. And there is no woman so plain that the constant exercise of cheerfulness and amiability will not make beautiful.

Certain it is that every woman who has swayed the history of humanity has known the value of cheerfulness—the value of a smile. No woman with fretful lines engraved on her face, no woman who has not learned to control her temper, who does not know the value of cheerfulness, can put up much of a show as a charmer.

Smile and keep young. You have all the rest of your life in which to grow old. Every one of us needs at times the ministry of the sunny, smiling soul who wields the wand of a cheerful temper.

A woman is gloomy or sad and she explains and excuses herself by saying that she has the blues. Or she is irascible and savage, and excuses herself by saying that she is in bad temper today.

Can one help having the blues? Can one help having a bad temper? Certainly! Moods are as subject to the will as any mental faculty. The difference between the successful, popular woman and the woman who, by simply the power of the former to control her moods and her temper. Unless one has her moods under control she has no real liberty.

Cheerful Person Best Worker.

Insanity sometimes is nothing but abject slavery to a mood. It is generally recognized that the cheerful person is the best worker. Cheerfulness is not frivolity. The perpetual giggles and grimaces are maddening, are a shameful waste of energy, and mark a weak and delicate nature.

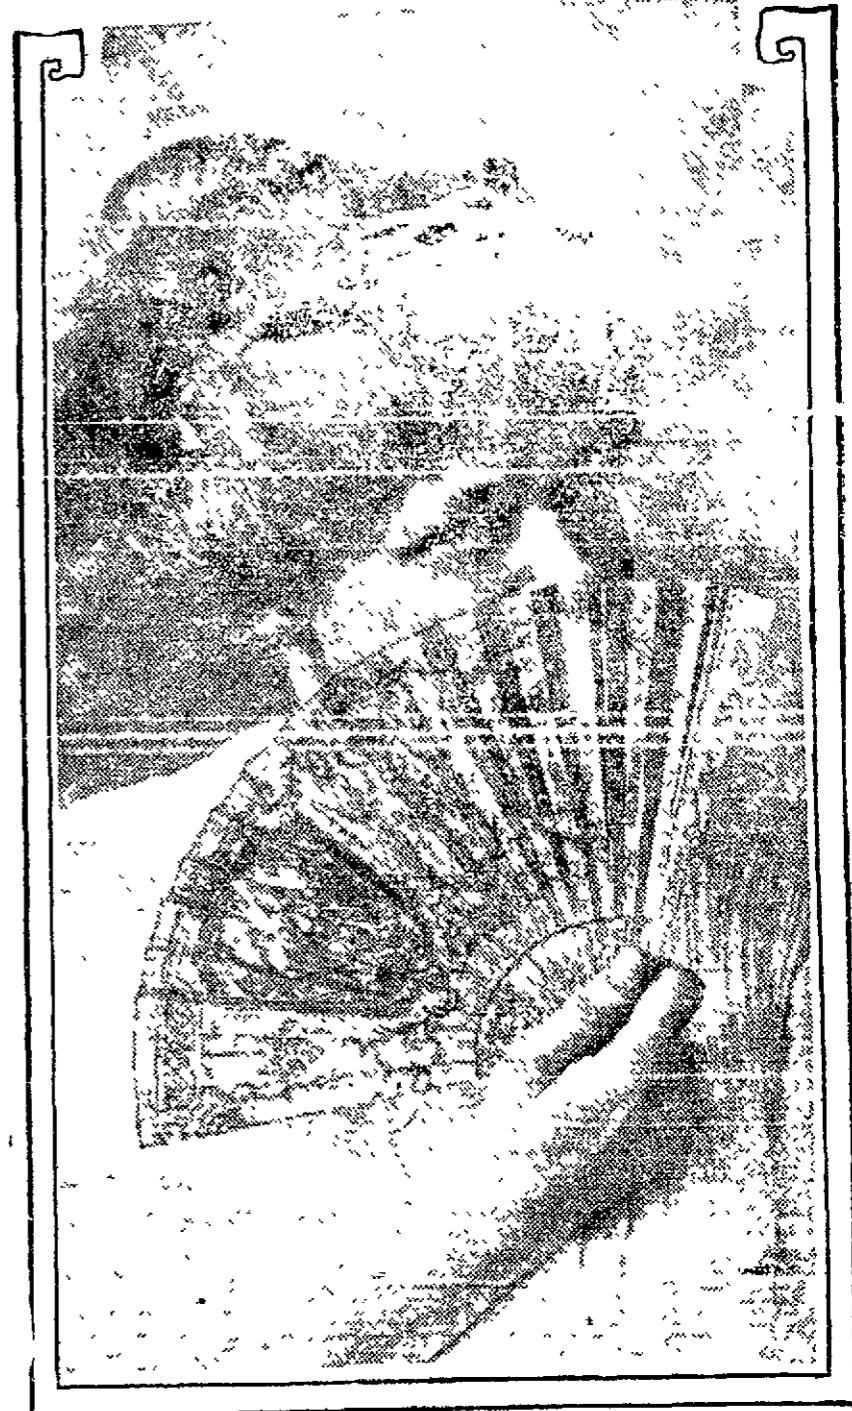

The smile must be from within, from a loving person. No smile can last far and no sarcasm can last the smile. Smiles are sneers and you are obeying the commandment of Christ. Life is joy and pleasure, you can sweep the room a hundred fold. You can help others through the world by a smile.

The girl who comes along with a cloudy face impeded

We go for help neither to the frivolous nor to the habitually despondent and sad, but to the habitually cheerful. The ready smile is akin to the ready tear of compassion.

There is the woman you meet on the street that has the contagious attorney of cheer about her. She meets you on the street with a greeting that lightens your spirits. You are glad to cross her path. Such people are a help to all with whom they come in contact.

Body, brain, and soul each one is a supplement for improvement and upon such depends beauty. No woman her own little circuit of studies. She grows thin and scrawny, and is just awakening to the fact that scant skirts have been worn.

* * * Goodness Nothing to Brag About.

Then there is the woman who prides herself on being good and religious. Being good alone isn't anything to brag about. It's as much a duty to be good and decent as it is to take a bath every day and comb one's hair. Those who aren't good are weak and lack control.

A healthy body, a healthy mind, and a heart that is doing business and is fully aware of the joys and sorrows of life—that is the combination that spells beauty. And by smiles and cheerfulness we come nearest to reaching it.

It is a genuinely beautiful ambition to cultivate cheerfulness because we not only make ourselves more attractive, but we also make the world more beautiful by giving full vent to every pleasant impulse and unselfish thought, by reading good, uplifting books, and by exercising patience and making oneself generally lovely.

Let the girl with the undeveloped figure and the sinking chest awake to the fact that she must combine body, mind, and heart in her beauty quest. Let every woman who would be well and strong and stimulated with the delicious fire of vitality and strength learn first the wisdom of such a beauty doctrine.

For smile is one of the best aids to beauty that can be found.

Relax your face muscles, loosen up the cords of your heart, and laugh.

can afford to give all her thoughts to one and never to another, and more, but no woman's beauty must appeal to the heart as well as to the eye.

There is the girl who goes mad on the subject of athletic. She is in for body beautifying. Her motives are excellent, but she must not forget to read a book once in a while, keep her hair shampooed and have a smile for the woman next door.

The brain beautifier goes in for intellectual life. This too, is good, but it sometimes happens that this intellectual woman has nothing to talk about beyond what she has read.

It is a genuine beauty secret to be able to talk about the cream you mention as I have never seen any mention about it myself and have nothing about it. There are some creams that are made on the market, and the best of all is the one that is made by a woman named Mrs. Brown. The concentrated extract of wild hazel is a little stronger. It is used to beautify her face to see on the face copied our "Tag Day," and the recent experiment was the floral fete day in London, or Queen Alexandra's day as it was called. The day was planned for her charities and was modeled after rose day in San Francisco, when our girls sold roses in the streets for their hospital work.

In London 10,000 women and girls, recruited from the best classes of society and dressed in white, acted as flower sellers, taking up stations in the streets, entering offices and shops, besieging hotels and club entrances, holding auctions in the Stock Exchange and other places, and altogether collecting by the sale of artificial wild roses sums which are expected to reach a total of $125,000.

The flower sellers were very pretty indeed, all gowned in white and all wearing white hats beautifully trimmed in pink wild roses. London was in fete for the occasion, and it makes one very happy to know that most of the money collected will go for the care of little crippled children.

In Paris many Americans are having a most interesting summer. Mrs. Mackay and her daughter, the Princess Colonna, are in Paris and were recently guests of Mrs. Spreckels at home. Mrs. Mackay is exceedingly popular abroad and is a leader of fashion in many of the smart sets.

She has not been in California of late years, though she has many friends here who were good friends of hers in pioneer Nevada days.

They were lucky days for her. It is a far cry from the humble little shack in Nevada, in which she did her own work, to a position of social power in Europe—one of the wealthiest leaders of the smart set abroad.

Mrs. Mackay usually has a house in London for the season, but this year she is spending the summer on the Continent. Among Mrs. Mackay's most intimate friends in America are Mrs. C. E. Huntington and Mrs. Delphine of New York and Mrs. Isaac Regna of Piedmont.

A large dinner was given in Paris for Princess Colonna, at which many distinguished Americans now staying in Paris were present.

Among the dinner guests were the young girls who will be Miss Crocker's attendants at her wedding.

Already wonderful gifts are arriving for this happy and fortunate bride-elect. She has many friends among members of the English aristocracy, and her relatives are members of the wealthiest smart sets of this coast and of New York. Besides she is a much-loved young girl whom her friends take great delight in troubling.

The Temperton Crockers are planning to return to Honolulu for the summer.

One of the most notable dinners of the week is them in what would be sure to prove a delightful and interesting trip.

MISS CROCKER VALUES GIFTS FOR THOUGHTS.

Apropos of wedding gifts, they are much more elaborate in England than they are here. Wonderful jewelry is often given and things of rare value.

A commercial element that is very practical as well enters into the wedding gift of today. In the old days if one changed a wedding gift one wanted to do so like a thief in the night when no one witnessed the act.

Nowadays it is quite an understood thing for the bride to exchange the things she does not want.

The gathers up a lot of the smaller presents, takes them back to some jewelry store, and gets for them all some large things which she may happen to want.

A later fad is not proving altogether acceptable to the bride's friends, who goes to some well-known firm, chooses the pattern of her silver "Marie-

"Dorchester"—whatever she may fancy and lets her friends know her choice. Then when they choose her gift they inquire for that pattern, and they feel obliged to purchase it, even though it may be the most expensive thing in the shop and more than they had intended to pay for the gift.

Mrs. Templeton Crocker received from her father a wedding gift of bonds representing in value a million dollars. Mr. Hopkins gave each one of his daughters, Mrs. Will Taylor, Mrs. Sam Taylor and Mrs. Fred McLean, their own names in can cases, and one of the gifts to his son, Samuel Hopkins Jr., on the occasion of the latter's marriage to Elyse Schuck, was a fine touring car, in which the wedding trip was taken.

The finest collection of presents in recent months was that given by Mrs. J. Wesley Gallagher (Muriel Steele). The wedding gifts were few in number and so there were not so many presents as one ordinarily finds in a bride's collection, but they were of great beauty. There was a

Summery Talk of Smart Set From the Pen of Suzette people have learned that that is the hardest kind of work.

Social conventions emanate in a great measure from New York, and the winter campaign of the smart set everywhere is modeled after that of New York. And we base our summer conventions on those of Newport, which represents the home of the most exclusive social families of our country. And we are told by one who knows that dinners are far and away the most popular form of entertainment at Newport this season. A season ago it was a picnic. Everyone motored to some picturesque place, and there was luncheon under some shady trees or a supper by moonlight on our ocean shore, with a campfire to help out the rays of the moon by way of an extra illumination.

And some phases of these dinners are of absorbing interest, because one who knows sends graphic pictures of them:

"People are not expected to eat much at a Newport dinner, though the food is usually good. It is shot at one as fast as it can be served and the wines follow each other in quick succession. No one is expected to stay after a quarter past 10. The guests arrive at 8:30 and must be out of the house at 10:20."

"Many a prominent social career has been wrecked at Newport through ignorance of his very important little custom. It is the unwritten law, often utterly absurd, based always on pure convention, which rules the world there, and in many other places, and none but the instinctively astute socially can learn them quickly enough to master the Newport game in a few reasons.

"For instance, a colleague wishes to give a dinner. Suppose he makes up his mind as to his night and sends out his invitations. Unless he has consulted the schedule of dinners for the summer he will come to grief, which will not be so prompt as it will be thorough and cutting."

"Thus, the ordinary millionaire who goes to Newport has a hard time, especially he who has made his money himself. This is not because the Newport set has any prejudice against the new millionaire."

"But the new millionaire really enjoys his money immensely. He has care taken to select right date."

"CARE IS TAKEN TO SELECT RIGHT DATE

MONEY NOT NECESSARY IN CLIMBING LADDER.

There is something quite helpful underlying the theme of the dinner story—in that Newport does not require money as a main factor for entrance into the smart set. Your money may be useful and it may take you a long way up the social ladder, but someone with a better equipment may serve the socially unimportant.

And another writer adds to one's store of knowledge in regard to summer dinner-giving:

"One is obliged to ask to his dinner everyone who has similarly favored him in the past. To neglect even in little, these important social obligations means a speedy social death.

"Few houses are big enough to accommodate at one time all the people to whom one is indebted. So the custom is usually to give three dinners. There are usually from 40 to 60 guests at each dinner. And they are given, not on separate dates, but one right after another.

"One can tell exactly what it is that Newport demands of those who aspire to its inner circles. Certainly it is not money, for some of its greatest favorites have very little. One thing it certainly will not have is the obvious ostentation of money. And it respects eccentricity of personality, or a strong individuality. Both are distasteful to a group whose only purpose is to slip through existence with the least effort.

"Thus, the ordinary millionaire who goes to Newport has a hard time, especially he who has made his money himself. This is not because the Newport set has any prejudice against the new millionaire."

"But the new millionaire really enjoys his money immensely. He has care taken to select right date."

'JOAN OF ARC,' SPECTACULAR CANTATA, IS TO BE PRODUCED AT GREEK THEATER

Oakland Soloist Takes a Prominent Part in Club Program

"Joan of Arc," a cantata, will be given at the Greek theater in the near future by the music department of the summer school at the University of California. The exact date of the affair has not been given, but Frederick E. Chapman, supervisor of music in the Portland public schools, and Thomas W. Surette, of Oxford University, England, may assist in the program. The latter will give two courses in summer school on "The Appreciation of Music" and on "Musical Forms."

Frederick G. Harrison Jr. was one of the soloists at the reception at the Fairmont Hotel, given by the California Federation of Women's Clubs to the members of the 11th biennial convention on July 4. Harrison sings at the First Methodist choir of this city and possesses a baritone voice of much warmth and sweetness.

Frank Wickham is on his way east from where he is to sail for Europe. He will travel through the summer months visiting Switzerland, Belgium and other places. He will spend the winter in Berlin, studying music.

Mrs. Beatrice West Fine, the well known singer, will come to the coast this summer and will give a series of concerts before returning to her eastern home.

A third tour for Kathleen Farlow, is of interest in all sections of the United States and Canada. The successes which this violinist achieved during the seasons of 1910-1911 and 1911-1912, were phenomenal.

The Kruger club gave an enjoyable concert last night at the Fairmont Hotel, in the ball room where many local musical folk attended to hear the following program:

MARCHING SHOES FOR THE N. G. C.

State National Guard to Have 3000 Pairs of Specially Made Brogans.

SACRAMENTO, July 6.—Three thousand pairs of "marching shoes" have been ordered for the members of the California National Guard by Adjutant General E. A. Forbes, the requisition for the shoes having been sent to the War Department at Washington yesterday afternoon. These shoes are to be used by the guardmen while on duty, for marches and during maneuvers and encampments. They form a part of the uniform.

These "marching shoes" are guaranteed not to cause blisters, corns, callouses, bunions, swollen feet or sore feet. They will be made to order, every pair having been ordered according to measurement and according to United States Army regulation, and the measurements are made by the army "yardfootsticks."

They will be built to all foot, the measurements recording the length, width and thickness of each foot, belonging to every National Guardsman. They are to be made of heavy leather, suitable for rough work and especially designed after years of investigation by the experts of the War Department.

In speaking of the requisition, General Forbes declared that if the National Guard were called out for duty on short notice, the State's army would be cut off communication within three days if body movements were necessary. He said that the militiamen would report in all kinds of footwear, from the heavy hobbled brogan to the dainty dancing pump, and the result would be blisters, corns and chafed feet.

'FIREBUG TRUST' LATEST WRINKLE

New York Syndicate Charged With Firing 300 Houses at $25 Each.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 6.—Ildor Steinruzel, an East side youth of diminutive stature, is under arrest, charged by the fire marshal with being the head of a widely ramified firebug syndicate, and of having started more than 300 fires in this vicinity in the last five years. Ildor, when cornered by the marshal on a fire escape on Eleventh street, was smoking a cigarette and watching the panic and distress caused by a tenement house fire in which the lives and property of eighty persons were in danger. He is charged with having started the blaze in conspiracy with Samuel Gold, in whose flat the fire occurred, and who is also under arrest.

The firebug syndicate which the marshal now hopes to suppress, is said to be composed of East Side fire insurance brokers and adjusters, a few underworld characters and a swarm of runners, whose vocation is to approach East Side tenement dwellers who are poor and easily tempted into dishonesty. The "runners" persuade them to join in the swindle of the fire insurance companies by overinsuring their few sticks of furniture and allowing the operatives of the syndicate to set the furniture afire.

The average price charged for starting a fire is about $25. According to the fire commissioner, 25 per cent of the fires in New York City are of incendiary origin.

SEE MURDER PLOT IN DOG BURIAL

Gypsies at St. Louis View Midnight Ceremony and Summon Police.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 6.—While Mary Lee and her son Mark, Gypsies, sat in front of their tent, near West End Heights, Wednesday morning, awaiting the return of the head of the family, they heard the barking of a wagon on the Clayton road. The wagon passed, but a few minutes later they heard the driver cry "Whoa!"

It was too dark for the Gypsies to see the wagon, so they walked across the field until they came very close to the vehicle. They were curious to know what a wagon was doing there at such an hour.

As they looked, the driver unlatched the tall gate of the wagon and lit out a long wooden box. Mary and her son clasped each other.

"A coffin," she whispered. "Sure nut," replied the boy, and both watched the man and the box. Off to the side of the field went the driver, and with shovel and pick loosened the dirt around the box for an hour he had dug a good-sized hole. Into this he lowered the coffin.

Mary Lee and her boy had seen enough. Terror-stricken they rushed to the camp. The rest of the night they feared to venture forth, but as daybreak came they made their way to the city limits and telephoned the mounted district police.

Up to that hour the clock on the wall of the station had been the busiest thing about. Andy Alyward had just come off duty from a night of peaceful slumber. He was all attention when Mary Lee, in broken language, was telling the story of the happenings of the night. He was all nerves when he hung up the receiver.

"Murder, sure as you're born!" he confided to Sergeant Joyce. "It's in the country but we'll have to find out about it." Officers Buckley and Winkel were due to call at the station in 15 minutes. Alyward waited with impatience for the call. When it came he sent them at a gallop out the Clayton road.

Mary Lee and her boy met them at the camp and led them to the grave. They found the footprints of a man, the tracks of the wagon, and the freshly moved earth.

Buckley galloped back to the city limits.

"It's true. There's a grave there all right," he told Alyward. "Dig it up and see who's in it." Alyward ordered Buck Buckley raced. A passing huckster was halted and his spade borrowed. The two took turns digging while Mary Lee and her boy stood by clinging to each other. Four feet down the diggers struck the coffin.

"Must be a baby," replied Winkel.

They lifted the box out of the hole, with the end of the spade they pried off the lid and exposed the body. It was that of a brindled bulldog.

"It's true. There's a grave there all right," he told Alyward. "Dig it up and see who's in it." Alyward ordered Buck Buckley raced. A passing huckster was halted and his spade borrowed. The two took turns digging while Mary Lee and her boy stood by clinging to each other. Four feet down the diggers struck the coffin.

"Must be a baby," replied Winkel.

How Queen Mary Is "Reforming London's Fast Set."

THIS wash day in good old London town, with a queen at the "tub" and a "fast set" in the blueing.

There's no joy in the city on the Thames for those who now see that their time of favoritism has gone forever. Every day is Blue Monday.

Queen Mary, supported in her theories by the king, is determined that the old time set that found favor in the eyes of King Edward shall not rule the fashionable world of which London is the center any longer. And so those persons who have come under the royal favor are no longer requested to be in attendance at presentations, nor have any of the invitations which they sent the king and queen been answered with anything except "regrets."

And, of course, there is revolution.

Those who were in favor in another régime are disgusted with things in general. Things are too quiet. There is no royal favor for the fast little parties that once were supposed to be just the proper thing. To them Queen Mary's court is a sort of dowdy affair. It is dull and full of ennui. In common ordinary United States language, "there's nothing stirring."

The beginning of things came when Queen Mary decided that she should be the one to dictate what costumes should be worn at presentation. It was at just the time when hobble skirts were in favor and the queen didn't like them. She gave forth orders that no woman wearing a hobble skirt could be received in the royal presence.

* *

Lady Paget Joins "Outsiders."

Of course, London gasped. But there was more to come! After the coronation, and especially after the royal trip to India, the invitations poured in to the king and queen to be present at various affairs given by old favorites of King Edward. Immense preparations were made for the reception of the rulers.

But the rulers decided not to attend.

One of the most disappointed of persons is Lady Paget. In the day of King Edward, Lady Paget was a real figure in London and she intended to keep on being a real figure in the reign of King George and Queen Mary. But she has tried and tried without success. Invitation after invitation has she sent to the mistress of England, but every one has been refused. Nor will King George accept.

And this is a real blow. Formerly when Lady Paget entertained she could hold forth the hope to other persons that they would have an opportunity of being presented personally to King Edward. The king was always willing to be present at her table, and on that account so was London. That meant that Lady Paget could do just about as she pleased in royal society—and she did.

But now has come the change. Those who attend Lady Paget's dinners now rarely see many really distinguished persons. All those who survived the change and who remained in the favor of Queen Mary stay religiously away. Lady Paget is being forgotten—and Lady Paget doesn't like it.

Queen Makes No Companions.

Nor do any of the others who have discovered that Queen Mary has decided to reform them. That she has done, and if it is necessary the queen intends to do a real job of washing—and ironing, too. There are to be no loose morals. There are to be no more fast dinners, no evenings and dinners in the honor of the king, where he would meet many persons he never would see under any other circumstances. If those persons happened to possess the qualities that King Edward desired he adopted their friendship. It was in this way that the king met Sam Lewis, the money lender of London.

But since the former king's death things have changed a great deal. In the old days, while none of these persons were invited to the palace, the home of Queen Alexandra, the favoritism of the king gave them the right to enter every other form of English society. Thus King Edward and Queen Alexandra were often divided as to their friends. King George and Queen Mary are not.

Since the queen has spoken, the king has agreed with her and aided her in her efforts to reform the so-called "fast set." Those who would prefer to be found in favor with royalty

King Edward, in his ruling days, did not care whether his companionate wife of

HOW QUEEN MARY PUTS 'EM THROUGH THE WRINGER!

She has refused to accept invitations to dinners given by friends of the late King Edward.

She has snubbed those who drink.

She has decreed that the hobble skirt must not enter her presence.

She doesn't like paint and face powder.

She is against picture hats.

She must know all about the person who is to be presented to her and if the examination isn't passed with a grade of 100 she "doesn't care to meet them."

The "fast set" must either be wiped out or reformed.

extraordinary birth or not just so long as they were interesting. And some of the things that came of that way of looking at things were interesting.

He was ready to pick up any one who offered promise of amusement. His life was one of merriment. One season in London he took about with him a young Austrian named Van Hoffman who had been introduced to him by Leopold of Belgium.

For a long time the companionship was the most interesting thing that London could find to talk about. They went everywhere together. They were inseparable. Finally the blow came.

It was discovered that the young man was an ex-convict and that he had succeeded in duping other monarchs as he had duped King Edward. The last that was heard of him had been arrested for spying on the military defenses of Switzerland for the benefit of Italy, but in the uniform and personage of "Count Carter, U. S. A."

"Count" Another Ex-Convict.

There was another ex-convict, "Count Jaracewski"; amusing, agreeable, ready talker, one whose humor was always available. King Edward liked him as he had never liked any one before and the "count" had everything his own way. One morning Lord Hastings, a friend of King Edward, arrived hurriedly in London and went to the "count's" apartments. He had come from the continent, and with him he had brought the knowledge that the "count" was really an ex-convict. He confronted the impostor with the knowledge that he had gained. A short time later the man was found dead in his room, a bullet hole in his forehead.

It was the duty of a certain coterie to continually giving dinners and luncheons in the honor of the king, where he would meet many persons he never would see under any other circumstances. If those persons happened to possess the qualities that King Edward desired he adopted their friendship. It was in this way that the king met Sam Lewis, the money lender of London.

OLD OPIE DILDOCK'S STORIES

(Copyright: 1911 by The Tribune Company, Chicago, Ill.)

Just as the dawn was breaking one morning in Jersey I awoke from a little slumber and sat up with a start just in time to see my trusty steed, Jerry, disappearing in the air. What carried him I could not tell.

Quickly I rolled out of my blankets and pursued the rapidly disappearing animal. I came to a marshy bit of land and found several peculiar looking stalks rising out of the marsh and disappearing—it seemed—in the sky. Fastening one of these stalks securely with grass, I started climbing, determined I'd reach the horse or die in the attempt.

I reached the top and ran along a long ridge. At the end of this ridge I came upon a film or thin glass inclosure in which I saw the horse. I told him to kick mightily and break through this film. This he did.

Quickly I mounted Jerry's back and we galloped down the long slope of the ridge. As we rode I could have sworn I saw the sides of the substance on which we were expand and contract. But thinking my imagination tricked me, I said nothing to the horse for fear of frightening him. And so we went on and on.

Finally we came to the gigantic stalk up which I had climbed shortly before, and down this Jerry and I began our perilous descent. I admonished Jerry to take his time and step cautiously, and he came near falling off when the great stalk quivered as he neared the ground. Fortunately the grass held it securely.

Hardly had we reached the ground when the great body fell with a great thud. I found that Jerry, in his eagerness to escape, had kicked through the eyes of the body and had weakened the nerve center. And so, weakened and blind, the great mosquito died as we rode away.

Broadside Will Be Hurled at the Colonel by Bourbon Candidate

Wednesday, August 7, Fixed for the Opening of the Campaign

SEA GRIT, N. J., July 6.—Woodrow Wilson and Senator-elect Ollie James in conference today decided that the first big gun of the Democratic campaign would be fired here Wednesday August 7, the date selected for the official notification.

The speech of acceptance now being prepared by the nominee will be a broadside at Theodore Roosevelt who is already claiming that the platform and policy of the Democratic party does not deal with the vital issues before the people.

"The high cost of living is the burning issue of the hour," said Governor Wilson today, indicating the trend of his mind. "At its heart lies the high protective tariff. A great many of the trust problems of the time are the outgrowth of the tariff. Take up the tariff and you must consequently take up the trust problem. These are so interwoven with the high cost of living that all must be considered as one."

Do you intend to take off your coat and go to the mat with Roosevelt?" the candidate was asked.

TO LET PEOPLE KNOW.

"That sounds decidedly strenuous, doesn't it?" he replied, laughing. "In my speech of acceptance I intend to let the people of the nation know exactly where I stand and special emphasis will be placed on the reforms so clearly necessary for the welfare of all classes."

The notification committee fifty-two strong, with their wives and friends, will be expected to arrive here shortly after noon on the date set for the notification.

Governor Wilson will make his address from the veranda of the Little White House and to use his own language, "supply the groundwork for the coming campaign."

Fans arrived at Sea Girt in time to take luncheon with Governor Wilson and family. After the conference he strolled out on the broad veranda to observe that if a man's education had not been neglected he "could sit here and enjoy a mint julep."

MCCOMBS FOR MANAGER.

"In addition to arrange for the notification I came to tell Governor Wilson I intend to enter heart and soul into the campaign and that I believe every other progressive in the nation will do the same."

"What do you think of the third party movement?"

"We'll attend to Mr. Roosevelt when the campaign opens," answered Senator James.

"What do you think of William F. McCombs for campaign manager?"

"I had a good opportunity to observe Mr. McCombs at Baltimore. I consider him a splendid organizer and a young man of great executive ability. But, mind you, everything concerning the organization of the campaign committee is in the hands of the nominees. I am satisfied after my talk with him that Governor MacNevin hunted up San Francisco Judge Shortall at the Olympic club late Friday night and swore out warrant for his arrest.

Dr. George M. M. MacNevin, a dentist with offices at 1005 Market street, is the man sought. His marriage is shrouded in mystery and his whereabouts are unknown, although impression has been created that he is on his way to Europe.

"I swore out the warrant to see where justice left in the land for me," Mrs. MacNevin said to Shortall. "And I did it for the sake of my 11-year-old boy, whom I have struggled to support until I am at my 'ends'."

According to William V. MacNevin, a wealthy real estate man of 16 Fulton street and a brother of man sought, the dentist has been "out of the water" for nearly a month, is out of the jurisdiction of local courts and is going to set abroad in some land where war is and alimony worry not.

"My marriage is now over," said brother tonight. "But I received telegram from my brother today telling me that he had arrived safely."

ACROSS WATER—WHERE?

Where across the water his brother is he declined to state, but Dr. J. Robert F. Schilling, his sister of 1600 Webster, San Jose, California, testifies to his having been seen San Francisco as recently as last Friday, it is presumed that the dentist and his bride are not as far away as might seem.

Miss May O'Connor, who has been visiting with her father at 1222 Howard street, has become the second Mrs. MacNevin, according to members of family and Mrs. MacNevin's attorney. Being told by a friend of her former husband's marriage with her, she rang up a sister of the dentist, who verified the news. She "wrote out the warrant."

BALKS AT ALIMONY.

Mrs. Francis MacNevin secured her decree in February upon grounds of non-support. Alimony was set at $75 month and later reduced to $50, according to Mrs. Schilling. Her attorney received an annuity of $100 month, and recently the dentist cited for contempt court for not meeting the alimony testified that he could not pay the money and a settlement was made. Before her marriage, the first Mrs. MacNevin was Frances D. Wyeth, society girl of this city. She moved society circles until the divorce forced her to make a living. "The doctor is a successful man," she said yesterday. "He had a large income, so we lived well."

The woman whom Dr. MacNevin is reported to have married is six years senior, he being 31 years old. For some years she was employed by Connor, Moffitt & Co., relinquishing her position two weeks ago.

WILSON TO FIRE AT THIRD PARTY

Burning Issues of Hour Are to Be Outlined by Bourbon Candidate.

Wilson will not select a man who will make serious mistakes.

The Missouri delegation arrived by automobile, this evening, Colonel Fleming, acting as the spokesman for the party said.

BELL IS FOR WILSON.

"We were instructed by Speaker Champ Clark to tell Governor Wilson we are going back to win for him. We wanted Clark to get the nomination, but since it went to Wilson, we will fight just as hard for his election."

Theodore A. Bell, who headed the California delegation at Baltimore, was one of the distinguished visitors of the day.

AMERICANS IMPRESSIVE.

The American team, which came fifth in the procession, made the greatest impression. The boys, all wearing blue coats and white flannelette trousers like an opera chorus, were led by Commissioner Sullivan and Colonel Thompson. The flags were borne by Joe Forshaw, the oldest member of the team, who ran in the Marathon at Athens, and Paul Gilligan, assistant manager.

Ralph Rose, as the most gigantic specimen, led the athletes as every boy came off at a signal passing the king's box, a crowd of American rooters opposite the stadium, under the direction of Cheer Leader Johnny Hallahan, led, loosed such a deafening yell that both the king and queen paused after returning the team's salute, to acknowledge the rooters.

The least impressive team in the procession was England's. Their men wore no costumes and generally presented a careless appearance.

WOMEN ATHLETES.

The Swedes who entered the arena last, made a splendid showing, and the ladies' gymnastic teams of Sweden, Norway and Denmark, trained like West Pointers, set an example for the women of the world for magnificent appearance.

This afternoon the king gave a garden party at the royal palace to the International committee.

States was interested primarily in just two events today—the 100-meter and the 800-meter runs. In both our boys made good with a vengeance. It took seventeen preliminary heats in the 100 meters and six semi-finals to reduce the big field to the six men who will start in the final heat tomorrow. Of this number five are Americans and one a South African.

I am not underestimating the speed of Patching of South Africa, but I like the chances of Drew, Lippincott or Craig to beat him. Had it not been for the fact that Drew strained a muscle in the semi-final heat, I wouldn't hesitate to pick him as the winner. Lippincott ran the fastest heat today and established a new world record of 10.8-6 seconds, but he had more difficulty in the semi-final heat. Drew, however, one of the fastest sprinters, I over saw and came off in the semi-final would be unbeatable tomorrow.

Craig did better in the semi-final than in the preliminary. Lippincott is not quite so good. I cannot say at this time whether or not John Paul Jones will start in the final of the 800 meters. By readjustment of heats, the semi-final in this event will be run tomorrow and the final on Monday. Jones won his heat today without even perspiring. He may run tomorrow. There are 18 men in the semi-finals of the 800 meters, eight of whom are Americans. There are just two of our opponents who do not give me any concern. They are Lungi and Beau of Germany. However, neither ran in very impressive form today and I think we will win the event without Jones, who should have some rest for the 1500 meters on Tuesday and Wednesday, in which we will have more trouble to win.

Of our heat winners today Jones loaded all the way.

America has reason to be proud of what her runners did today. They did even better than I anticipated and if the rest of the team does as well we will score heavily all week.

In the track events the Americans

RECORD IS BROKEN.

And in the events themselves, well, it just seems that the Stars and Stripes was the only empire showing at the finish line, as in heat after heat in the 100 and 800 meters which were the only events in which there were American entries. It was one of our boys always in front. "An American again" was all that could be heard from the European correspondents in the press box, except when Lemming, the giant Swede, broke the world's record in the javelin throw, in which no Americans were entered. He hurled the spear sixty and sixty-four one hundredths meters, breaking his own world's record by over two meters, and the crowd went wild.

No SPEAKING DATES.

John C. Nagle and Frank D. Barnes president and secretary, respectively, of the Detroit Democratic League, called and requested Governor Wilson to speak in that city July 16 on his way back from Oscar W. Underwood, reading as follows:

"I feel sure you will be elected President next November and am glad to render any aid in my power to accomplish the desired result. As floor leader of the party in the House of Representatives I wish to say to you that our action between now and the time of adjournment may affect the campaign, and I hope you will not hesitate to advise me freely as to any matters transpiring in Washington which you may consider essential for the good of the cause."

SEND CONGRATULATIONS.

Thomas S. Martin of Virginia.

"Returning from the Baltimore convention, I avail myself of your nomination. Virginia is clear of a state, but it will be a pleasure to me there and elsewhere to do everything in my power to bring success to the cause. The campaign could not open with brighter prospects and I have no doubt whatever about your election."

J. Hamilton Lewis wired from Chicago:

"It is my belief that the Ohio Democrat will give you a plurality in November and unparalleled in the history of my state, eclipsing the majority of 100,000 given Governor Harmon in 1910."

"I assure you that whatever service I may be to you, you have but to command."

CONTIBUTIONS SENT IN.

"One of the most interesting features of my mail today were the letters which contained checks. They are from $5 to $100. Please me greatly because it is my idea of the right kind of a campaign fund. I think contributions should come in small amounts from unsolicited sources."

Among the callers of note who saw the candidate were George T. Heard, representative from Mississippi, Congressman Stephen B. Ayres of New York and W. S. Cantrell of Benson, III.

John A. Wilson came over from Franklin, Pa., and was greeted as "Cousin John." Asked to speak for the others of the Wilson family, who are numerous, he said:

"It was Woodrow who was nominated. The rest of us are just glad."

At the close of the day Governor Wilson went for an automobile ride and demonstrated that he was very tired by falling asleep. He was still asleep when the chauffeur pulled up in front of the residence of the man in which Desmond had barricaded himself. This morning he was found dead in his room.

Constable McEvily summoned aid and Sheriff Langford responded with an automobile load of deputies. Darkness overtook the officers before they arrived at Mountain View, so Langford posted a guard about the home in which Desmond had barricaded himself. This morning he was found dead in his room.

REDMAN IS WINNER.

the second flight, L. A. Redman defeated Mr. W. S. Eader by 4 up 8 to play.

Redman's favorite number during this tournament has been fours, looking back over the records of matches during this tournament, quite remarkable that in each every event he defeated his opponent by four up.

O. E. Hotta, in the defeated of the first flight, who by this is known to everyone, did an unusual this morning. With a strokes to use, he defeated M. A. Montague by 6 up and 4 down.

If there is any one thing that has happened during this tournament that has caused more comment, it is ands and byplay indeed, the fact that certain players stood in with the handicap committee has almost resulted in a Don't shoot the fiddler, he did best he could.

ICAGO, July 6.—Samuel Baum, a convenience from Waterloo, Iowa, was over recently when a pretty young woman was seen walking down the street, and threw her arms about his neck.

This young woman politely excused herself and walked away. Ten minutes later showed a roll of bills amounting to $100, he retired in his coat pocket.

HIGH SCHOOL 'GIRL' IS FIFTY YEARS OLD.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 6.—Mrs. Jennie Denney, a prominent Grand Rapids club and society woman, is a member of the graduating class of the Central High school here. She is 50 years old. Mrs. Denney's return to school days was not the result of an eccentric impulse, but part of a plan for serious educational work. She intends to enter the University of Chicago next fall. She was teacher in the city schools here before her marriage.

SEEKS ART CONGRESS.

F. H. Mayer, director of the California School of Arts and Crafts of Berkeley, left today for Dresden, Germany, where he will represent the Panama-Pacific International exposition in an effort that will be made to secure the 1916 meeting of the International Art Teachers' Congress. No session of the congress has ever been held in America, all previous meetings having been held in England, Germany, Austria or France.

Mayer will visit London, Paris, Rome, Vienna, Berlin, Brussels and Dresden in the effort that will be made to secure the congress for San Francisco in 1916. Today he held a conference with Australian delegates to the congress, and through them will secure the co-operation of practically all of the delegates representing the British empire.

GREETINGS RECIPROCATED.

The San Francisco Chamber of Commerce has received the following letter from the Chamber of Commerce and Industry of Wien, Austria:

"We have the honor to heartily reciprocate the greetings conveyed to us through your vice-president, William Thomas Johnson.

"The permanent Austrian exhibition committee, in the movements of which this organization takes an active part and the offices of which are in this building, has, since the end of the previous year, not only occupied itself with the question of Austrian participation at the Panama-Pacific International exposition, to be held in San Francisco in the year 1916, but is also taking steps to insure the most brilliant possible Austrian representation at this great assembly.

"We beg you to rest in the assurance that the charming invitation to visit the exposition at San Francisco will be taken into consideration.

"We thank you for the expressions of preferred hospitable welcome."

MAN FALLS TO A FRIGHTFUL FATE.

Workman Faints and Drops Into Shaft Prepared for Dynamite Blast.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 6.—Four sticks of dynamite had been placed at the bottom of a workman John Johnson had lit the fuse and was being hauled up the forty-five-foot shaft in a tub when he called to the informants to stop him. "Hurry! I'm fainting."

The handle of the hand crane turned more quickly. The tub was fifteen feet from the mouth of the shaft—ten feet five. Then his comrades saw the man's muscles relax and his body started to the chimney, which clattered on its hinges. Johnson, unconscious, fell forty feet down the shaft—down to the floor of dynamite and the spattering fuse.

"We beg you to rest in the assurance that the charming invitation to visit the exposition at San Francisco will be taken into consideration.

"We thank you for the expressions of preferred hospitable welcome."

HUSBAND INSULTS FLAG; WOMAN GETS A DIVORCE.

DENVER, Colo., July 6.—Mrs. Florence R. Jacklin has been granted a divorce from Stephen Jacklin because her husband tore down and trampled under his feet a little American flag which his wife had hung at half-mast in front of their home. Mrs. Jacklin's former husband was an American soldier in the Spanish-American war, but Jacklin, it was testified, violently opposed all patriotic shown to his wife. When she was married to her first husband, she says, she asked him to tear the flag and she reluctantly watched the little dog and

SUICIDE ATTEMPT REVEALS STRANGE DRAMA

Woman Who Fled From San Francisco Home Found in Sacramento.

NEAR DEATH FROM SELF-INFILTED STAB

Fear of Tragic Ending of Prospective Motherhood Prompts Act.

SACRAMENTO July 6.—A admitting that she was the missing Mrs. Grace Zachokke of San Francisco, the woman who registered here in a local hotel Wednesday night as "Miss Roberta King" and then stabbed herself in the abdomen with a penknife furnished the authorities tonight with the denouement to a queer psychological drama.

At the hospital where she is lying close to death the woman continued to deny her insanity today, but final proof was supplied by a letter she had written to her brother-in-law, J. M. Lyman of Portland with written instructions to send it in case of her death.

LEAVES PATHETIC LETTER.

SAN FRANCISCO July 6.—The case of Mrs. Zachokke came first before the public when she disappeared Tuesday from her home in this city, 1503 Stanyan street, leaving for her husband, Theodore C.

Zachokke a pathetic letter in which she wrote of her alternate fears and hopes regarding a prospective motherhood. Mrs. Zachokke said in her letter that she feared that a recent accident which had befallen her might have an injurious effect upon her unborn child, and that she could not bear the disappointment if such were to be the case.

The husband appealed to the police and all the hospitals and maternity homes of the city were searched without result. No clew came before the announcement from Sacramento that a woman answering to Mrs. Zachokke's description had attempted suicide in a hotel there. Identification was made complete when the identification in San Francisco discovered a peculiar intimation behind the woman's ear, due to an operation for mastoid.

ZACHOKKE'S STATEMENT.

Zachokke today made the following statement of her wife's disappearance before he learned of the identification at Sacramento.

"Mrs. Grace Zachokke is a woman of high ideals and because she was unable to find or fulfill her ideal of home life she probably has decided to live alone until after her child is born."

This distressing incident is the result of many circumstances and events which love naturally overlooks, but which easily become intolerable in a home where love is not reciprocal, and especially to one about to become a mother.

"Mrs. Zachokke feels that she owes a duty to her unborn child and she believes that the best conditions for her child will be had only away from her husband. Undoubtedly the strain of the terrible ordeal of choosing between her duty to her family and to her unborn babe and worry about her child unbalanced her mind and caused her to write the letter which has so alarmed her husband. As she has not been found, either dead or alive, it is very probable that she is with friends and is not a suicide nor an inmate of a maternity hospital."

"It is preposterous to believe that another has won her affections, as she has a high sense of honor and duty. When her child is born she will undoubtedly resume her other duties, but until then I am sure that she feels that her first duty is to her unborn child."

Mrs. Zachokke tried to end her life in her hotel room by binding a knife to the bedpost and throwing herself upon it. When taken to the county hospital she had but ten cents in her pocketbook and told the physician that she had virtually eaten no food for four days.

Dr. June Harris said tonight that the woman would recover from the wound she had inflicted upon herself. When told that Zachokke was on his way from San Francisco to see him, she became hysterical and declared that she preferred to remain at the hospital and attempt to make her own living as a stenographer.

Her brother, Ed Lyman of Portland, Ore., for whom she left an envelope to be opened in case of her death, will arrive here Monday.

GIRLS PROPOSE; ARE ACCEPTED

Chums Pop the Question on a Dare and Win Husband.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. July 6.—Miss Nina Lewis, 15 years old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Lewis, 4720 Ashland avenue, told a reporter the other evening that she and her chum, Miss Wilma B. Hettler, also 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Hettler, 914 Bayard avenue, had proposed marriage to two young men at the class Chautauqua and had been accepted.

The proposals were the result of a leap-year dare, she explained. She said she did not know when the weddings would take place, but thought it would be soon. Neither she nor Miss Hettler had notified their parents, she said.

BOTH SOLDIERS GRADUATE.

Miss Lewis' 16-year-old friend, Miss Hettler, is a graduate of Julian high school at the same time. Both are in party and at a home party the Chautauqua, with Mrs. William Breyer, 4828 Fountain avenue, as chairman. Monday afternoon, according to Miss Lewis' admission by long distance telephone, members of the party were strolling. Edgar F. Stevens, 16, of the class, was swimming in the lake, while John Rothacker of Alton, swimming in the Chautauqua, swam to Miss Lewis.

EACH ACCEPTS A DARE.

Something was said about juggling keep sake and Miss Lewis dared Miss Hettler to expose to Stevens. Miss Hettler, the story goes, took up the dare, asked Stevens to marry her and invited him to a party at the home he frequented in Alton. She did not hesitate, but immediately made up the dare, subject to her request. Stevens did her bidding and the two girls accepted each other's challenge.

'SPIRITS' QUICKLY RETURN BIG SUM

Woman Acts as Detective and Gets Back $2000 Given to Medium.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—After waiting in vain for six months for the return of $2000 which he had been led to turn over after a series of mystic seances and strangeclairvoyant sessions, Miss Matilda Wagner of 978 Ellis street obtained a return of her money and the arrest of the alleged culprit tonight. The sooty palmist, who is in the city prison charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, is Charles Hold, and all he has secured out of the transaction, he says, is $77, charged the young woman as fees in his long and frequent delings into the occult.

TAKES HER MONEY.

Miss Wagner had the $2000 on deposit in the German Bank and desired a man of means to invest where the money would be safe. She selected Shields' advertisement in the paper and journeyed to the clairvoyant parlor at Sutter and Fillmore streets. There he read her palm, listened to her tale of money in the bank, and, she says, told her that the stamp of good luck would be on an investment which he would suggest to her. She turned over the money and was patient until he suddenly disappeared from his regular haunts. She learned that he had gone to Oakland, where it is believed into the occult.

COUNT MARRIES TO LEAVE JAIL KILLED PACKING HER TROUSSEAU

Go Through Ceremony But Refuses Thrice to Kiss the Bride.

NEW YORK July 6.—Miss Lena Takacs and Ida Czernadice were married yesterday under unusual circumstances. The ceremony took place in the office of Sheriff Harburger with Deputy Sheriff John Purcell standing by to see that no trouble would occur in the arrangements. Czernadice commented to Purcell that he would not have to remain a prisoner in Ludlow street jail where he was held on bonds on the charge of Justice Green of the City Court. It is a breach of promise suit for $6000 damages brought by Miss Takacs. It was his one chance to get out of jail, and he took it, although he did not look good. Mr. J. Smith, the marrying attorney, had the knot and untied the other. In fact, Czernadice refused to kiss the bride because it was all over, although she seemed to be in a receptive mood.

Czernadice, who is said to belong to a wealthy family in Hungary and addressed as "Count," and Mrs. Takacs, both three years ago, and the promise of marriage resulted in a party was given in honor of the engagement at the home of a mutual friend. But a few weeks ago Mrs. Takacs heard that her fiance was showing some intent to tie a widow. She thought that Czernadice was preparing to go to Hungary with the other woman and she began her suit and caused his arrest.

Miss Lena was taken to Ludlow street but only one condition that he must go to jail in case of a trial was made. This was communicated to the judge, and he agreed. Deputy Sheriff Purcell went to the jail yesterday with Miss Takacs and got married. Then the three went to the City Hall where the former was obtained. Czernadice gave his age as 25 and said he had been put here over at 9 years. After a number of rounds, he and Sheriff John Purcell left the court.

Coroner Feingold decided that death was a natural death.

DOG TAG BOUGHT FOR PRETTY BRIDE

Bride-Elect Is Shot When Pistol Catches in Lace.

Chicagoan Wanders Into the Wrong Office and Gets Wrong Kind of Permit.

CHICAGO July 6.—A slender, ten-year-old girl of 18, Lorraine, went to the county building for a marriage license. In his confusion he entered the wrong office and unwittingly bought a dog license. Straightening the tangle cost him four hours of his homemaking.

Lorraine is not very familiar with American customs. He knew he had to have a license to wed Mary Dickhut. If he knew better he would have gone to the office of Justice Green of the City Court. It is a breach of promise suit for $6000 damages brought by Miss Takacs.

SCARCITY OF SHIPS MAY RAISE COST OF LUMBER

Coast Concerns Cannot Obtain Enough Carriers to Meet Demand.

CHARTER RATES GOING UP HIGHER AND HIGHER

Building of New Vessels Being Planned; Other Oakland Harbor News.

Because of the shortage of bottoms for lumber carrying on the coast the charter rates for vessels of that class have advanced to rates which has seldom been equaled. The rates promise to still increase. The steadily increasing demand for lumber bottoms along the coast is responsible and vessel owners are reaping in dividends of greater size than they have had the fortune to do in times past. At present the rate for carrying lumber varies from $5.25 until the $6 notch is nearly reached for the transporting of coastwise lumber.

According to report the present carrying price will soon be increased, and it is understood that the price will advance between 25 cents and 50 cents at its next jump. This threatened increase and the present high charter rates is responsible in a great measure for the lumber concerns along the coast building new boats of steam schooner class for the carrying of their lumber. As the charter rates advance much more, according to local officers, a decided advance in the price of lumber will be the result.

ORDER NEW VESSELS.

Already numerous coastwise lumber companies have foreseen the growing scarcity of lumber bottoms and at present there are over a score of lumber carriers rapidly nearing completion both at Pacific and Atlantic coast shipbuilding concerns. Not only have contracts already been let, but it is rumored that within the space of a few months the various shipbuilding yards about the bay will be alive with workmen constructing new coasters. This rumor appears to be with some foundation, as several lumber officials have declared that their companies would soon be letting new contracts for carriers.

The big Japanese liner Nippon Maru, with Captain Alfred C. Stearns, the "beau brunehu," skipper of the Pacific, sailed yesterday afternoon for the Orient. The big liner's sailing was witnessed by several hundred persons of note in the society realms about the bay, who had gathered to see their friends and acquaintances who were on the big ship a send-off. The dock from where the steamer sailed was covered with persons of the smart set and frocks of the latest cut and mode were out in full force and glory.

PROMINENT PASSENGERS.

Among the prominent passengers who sailed on the steamer was Mrs. Dr. Florence Ward of San Francisco, who with her two children will make the round trip between here and Hongkong. The vessel, in addition to seventy-five cabin passengers and a number of second-class and steerage passengers, carried 1,000 tons of cargo and a big shipment of silver bullion. Accidents marred the steamer's departure, and she sailed for the Far East with the "bon voyage" and "good byes" ringing from the smart set gathered at the dock.

The big British freighter Gifford, Captain McIlwaine, is scheduled to arrive here today from Antwerp. Upon her arrival she will tie up at Long wharf, where she is to discharge a cargo consisting of coke, rags sand and fertilizer. The steamer is under charter to the Parrott people of San Francisco.

Another big steamer due here tomorrow is the Alaska Pacific freight and passenger steamer City of Puebla, Captain Paulsen, from Victoria. She will load 1,000 tons of freight, consisting of canned goods, fruit, oils, etc., for the north and will discharge 500 tons of merchandise.

STEAMER IS ENLARGED.

The river steamer Corcoran of the California Transportation Company, which has been lying at the foot of Franklin street for the past few weeks, arriving from San Francisco, was formerly one of the smallest vessels in the California Transportation fleet but on a suggestion by Captain R. V. Ridout, manager of the concern, she was enlarged until she is now one of the largest of her class.

The following vessels departed yesterday for various destinations along the coast, where they will load lumber for local trade. Whitehorne, Deseatre, San Joaquin, North Fork, Santa Monica and Brooklyn.

The steam schooners Excelsior and Mogul are at the United Engineering Works undergoing repairs. The Mogul arrived here yesterday in ballast from San Pedro. She is in charge of Captain Reinertsen.

LONG WHARF IS BUSY.

The steam schooner Washington, Captain Lee, landed after a pleasant run from the Columbia river. She is at Long wharf discharging a cargo.

Other vessels at Long wharf this morning were the steam schooners Naval, Captain Nelson, from Eureka, discharging lumber; Syren, Captain Deedickson, from Gray's Harbor, James, after calls for Bandon. The steam schooner South Coast completed her landing of a portion of her lumber cargo at Long wharf and moved around to the Hogan Lumber Company's wharf to complete her discharge.

The Alaska Pacific steamer Watson, Captain Partlett, completed her work at Long wharf late yesterday and sailed at 10:30 for the San Francisco side, she having 500 tons of freight while at the local wharf and discharged 180 tons.

The steam schooner Jim Butler, Captain Green, from the Columbia River is at the Hogan Lumber Company's wharf discharging a lumber cargo.

The schooner Advent, which arrived here on July 1, has been loaded across the San Francisco side and is now at the local wharf.

The schooner Adair, which arrived here on July 1, has been loaded across the San Francisco side and is now at the local wharf.

WIFE MADE HIS BARE FEET TARGET

St. Louis Lawyer Declares His Spouse Hurled Blocks at His Toes.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 6.—Mrs. Edna A. Anderson Tuesday took up heretofore and replied to charges made by her husband, Charles J. Anderson, attorney, in a petition for divorce he filed Monday.

Anderson says his wife hurled wooden blocks at his bare feet while he was dressing, and then threw his shoes at him.

"I am not Ty Cobb," declared the wife, who is employed in a physician's office at 221 North Grand avenue. "I couldn't hit his feet even if I tried."

"She picked my pockets of money," the attorney alleged in his petition.

"I didn't, but I would not have hesitated to pick them if I had thought there was anything in them," replied the wife. "It would have been love's labor lost, for there wasn't any money in his pockets when I had a chance to pick them. I have been justified, because he did not provide for me."

SHOTS HEAT JUSTIFICATION.

After she had picked his pockets, Anderson alleged, she pasted them on his nose, clipping, scolding & decision of a Justice of the Peace that a wife is justified in taking money from a husband's pockets.

"She spent her time attending such parties, theaters and horse races," charged the husband.

"If I did all those things I must have been a good fellow, and a good fellow is a valuable wife," said Mrs. Anderson. "I should have tied her up to me, for few men can stand good fellows for wives."

"She tried to get me to leave to make me move," Anderson charged.

"I didn't, but it would take a fire to make him move—he is so slow," countered the wife.

"The truth is," she continued, "he is trying to injure my reputation, but I will not permit him. I shall file a cross bill which will be interesting reading—for him I want the custody of our son, Clifford, a bright boy, 12 years old, and want him home. I am entitled to all money, because during the two years we have been separated I have asked my husband for nothing."

Another charge made by Anderson is that his wife would telephone him pretending to be another woman and attempt to make engagements with him. Not content with this, she induced her women friends to indulge in similar practice, he says.

IF SHE PROVES BABY IS HERS SHE GETS LIBERTY

PORLTAND, July 4.—If Minnie Stone, negro, can prove that the tiny infant which she introduced as evidence in her defense in the Municipal Court is her own property and not borrowed to arouse the sympathies of Judge Tazwell, she will be released.

Mrs. Stone was arrested in South Portland by Patrolman Aunderson while engaged in a mild flirtation, according to Anderson.

"Al'm a married woman with a baby," declared Miss Stone when confronted with a charge of vagrancy. "I got a right to prove it."

"Suppose you let us see the baby," suggested Judge Tazwell.

Mrs. Stone hopped from the witness stand and plucked up an infant of ebony hue and with rusty lungs in the court corridor.

"He's my baby," she announced triumphantly on her return.

The negro gave a display of vocal fireworks for the benefit of the magistrate. If that is your baby, will release it, said the judge after an inspection of the infant. "You're going to bring me proof that it is by 9 o'clock tomorrow morning."

Mrs. Stone made a hurried departure, assuring the judge that she would have all the proof that he wanted.

HENRY MILLER OWNS VAST EMPIRE OF FERTILE LAND

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—One of the leaders in the National Federation of Women's Clubs, which is in session here, is Mrs. Helen Varick Boswell of New York. In 1907 Secretary of War Taft sent Mrs. Boswell to the Panama canal zone to bring about happy social conditions for the women and children who had gone from this country to join their husbands and fathers. The other day, in talking of her experiences in the canal zone, she said she ran across a man in charge of the schools who had to be gotten rid of for several reasons. Among other things, he was a champion nepotist. He had on his payroll at $1200 a year his wife, son, daughter and son-in-law, in addition to several friends. In those days canned foods had to be greatly relied upon. When a woman expected to entertain friends at dinner she was wont to say when it got time to prepare the repast:

"Well, I must go out and kill a can."

His Brother Was a Bishop

It is sometimes a disadvantage to have a brother in high position. The Rev. Dr. Matt S. Hughes of the First Methodist Episcopal Church at Los Angeles recently found this out at the general conference of the church at Minneapolis. He was ambitious to be elected a bishop and succeeded in getting a goodly number of votes. A friend of the divine tells me he failed of the requisite number because he has a brother who is a bishop. The latter is Bishop E. H. Hughes of this city, who has again been assigned to the California district for four years. The delegates did not think two in the same family should be bishops at the same time. Nothing of that kind has ever happened in the church. At one time, however, two men who were cousins were holding such positions. The Southern California minister is an able man and unconventional in pulpit attire at times. Once he took the breath of his congregation away by preaching his Sunday morning sermon in a white woolen suit suit, minus a vest. It was a hot day and he looked the picture of comfort in his summer resort dress. In spite of some criticism from members of his flock, he held his ground and said it was merely a common sense thing to do in hot weather. He, together with many suffragists in and out of the Methodist Church, still feel put out over Bishop Hughes' speech in Baltimore some months ago against women as voters. The bishop said in part at that time, or at least was quoted as saying:

"The inferiority of woman's intelligence as compared with that of man is the reason for her failure to become a good voter, or to effect any real reform."

Pelted With Over-Ripe Bananas

Heinrich Berger, the famous leader of the Royal Hawaiian Band for forty years, has resigned. He will be here in a few days en route to his old home in Germany for a visit, after which he will return to the islands and quietly pass his old age in retirement. Berger, who has a host of friends in San Francisco and is somewhat of an international character, was a member of the band that led the advance column when the Germans marched on Paris in the war of 1870-71. In the islands he has served as bandmaster under Kings Kamehameha V, Lunalilo and Kalakana and Queen Liliuokalani; also under the territorial governors beginning with Sanford B. Dole. For awhile Lunalilo insisted on being a member of the band. He was crazy to beat the big bass drum and did so to his heart's content and much to the disgust of Bandmaster Berger. When Liliuokalani was deposed, the native members of the band went on a strike. White musicians had to be obtained from this city to play under Berger as leader when Governor Dole was inaugurated. Later on the white men had to give way to the native players and they have been a happy family ever since. Some of the best of the Hawaiian airs are credited to this talented German bandmaster. Both Berger and Governor Dole can never forget how the white band players on their first appearance were assaulted by the throwing of many large over-ripe bananas by a crowd of natives. There was a pretty mess of things for an hour, a mess as bad as any rotten-egg party, minus the odor.

Successful in Agriculture

They are "back to the farm" in a small but earnest way.

A vegetable garden in the back yard is the hobby this year of a certain young and well-known couple. His spare moments from the office are spent among the little plots containing a variety of goodly, growing plants. His better-half tends them during the morning hours until they are almost potted and spoiled. Early the other morning hubby heard a scream from his wife out in the midst of the promising garden truck, followed by cries of "Jim," "Jim." Half dressed, alarmed and thinking his wife had seen a mouse or tread on a snake, or that some raving dog was raising havoc with their farmer work of two or three months, the husband rushed to the rescue, shouting as he ran out of the door:

"What is it? A snake or a mouse?"

"No, but do hurry and come here, Jim," was the reply as the wife pointed downward close to where she stood.

The head of the house relieved but still nonplussed at his wife's excited manner hurried over to the mysterious spot. Arriving out of breath, he saw his wife's face wreathed in smiles as she stooped down, and, quickly lifting up a big green leaf, revealed in all its appetizing beauty a full-grown cauliflower.

She Was From New England

She may have been a Federation of Women's Clubs delegate, but anyhow she was from New England, was seeking information and was not backward with her questions. Standing at the Palace Hotel office counter her eye happened to see a lot of mail being distributed for guests:

"What kind of mail do you get out here?" she inquired of one of the clerks as she neatly folded a coat and placed it on her left arm.

"All kinds of mail matter, madam," was the business-like response.

"Yes, I presume so," she proceeded to say with a curiosity that was far from satisfied. "Pacific Coast letters and packages, I suppose?"

"No madam, we get mail from every place under the sun where people can send such matter," said the presiding genius of the office with just a faint show of impatience.

"Oh! How very interesting!"

Prince Dislikes the Missionaries

Mohammed Ali, brother of the khedive of Egypt, who has been touring California incognito for the past twenty days, was in Santa Barbara at the time the Y. M. C. A. was carrying on a $75,000 in ten days' campaign. The prince, who is a very intelligent and dignified young man, asked a friend of mine at the Potter Hotel what was the meaning of the efforts to collect a fund of $75,000. When the matter was explained to him, he remarked with a shrug of the shoulders:

"Oh, a missionary affair, is it?"

When my friend, a member of the Y. M. C. A., told him of what the work of the organization consisted, the Egyptian prince admitted it was doubtless a good thing, but he quickly reverted to the subject of missionaries with bitterness. He proceeded to say that if the American people realized how the money donated for missionary purposes was often misspent they would use the same money to far better advantage and other ways of helping those they wished to help. He resented the interference with their children in the matter of religion, saying that the Mohammedans considered their religion quite satisfactory and that the result of the attempt to instill Christianity into Egyptian children was to confuse them utterly.

"Decidedly presumptuous from the Egyptian standpoint is the missionary," was the closing remark of the prince.

Here Is a Dish for the Gods

Colonel Sam Parker, noted as an epicure in San Francisco as well as in his home town of Honolulu, where he has been a lavish host for years to prominent people of every clime, has a new dish. It is not original with him, the colonel frankly says, for he first heard of it and tasted it in New York ten or twelve days ago when a broker friend invited him to a dinner prepared by a French chef just over from Paris. The dish consists of frogs' legs cooked in cream and placed in the middle of an omelet. It was served as one of the courses at the dinner. Parker smacks his lips when he talks about this frogs' leg omelet. The colonel has a small frog pond of his own and he told his friends there will be a raid on it for awhile to make his new kind of omelet. Parker, by the way, like Raphael Weill, Joe Redding, Thornwell Mullally and others of the best gourmet class in town, clings to the old substantial and artistic culinary ideals and frowns on cabaret entertainment and other innovations as a menace to good food. He wants less of the frills and more of the best dishes from those who know how to cook.

Pop Sullivan Has His Joke

"Pop" Sullivan is up here from Southern California and gives evidence of having been bitten by the "boost bug" of that region, although he is telling his friends there is no place like San Francisco in the long run. Sullivan is living on his income in the south after having amassed a snug fortune in the saloon business in this city prior to the fire. His last deal, about 1904, was to sell out to the Hoffman cafe at Second and Market streets to Sam Regnard for $30,000. I guess Sullivan was the best saloon man the city ever had and he built up three or four places, like the Reception and Hoffman, and disposed of them at a good figure. "Rudie" Fishbeck probably has taken his place in this latter respect since 1906. The latter is a great friend of John Tait, the swell restaurant man. Fishbeck thinks there is no man in town like Tait and will never stand by quietly and hear aught said against him. Knowing this loyal trait of Rudie's, Sullivan, on meeting him yesterday, casually remarked that he had seen in the morning papers the names of a lot of people who would never go into Tait's place again.

"Well, did you ever," put in Fishbeck without a moment's hesitation. "What are they kicking about now? Nothing, I'll bet. Let me see the names of those guys."

And Sullivan showed him the death column in one of the papers.

Carpentier and the Prince

Horace W. Carpentier, the octogenarian who formerly owned the Oakland water-front, is pretty spry around the Palace hotel these days. New York has long been his home and it was in his mansion there that Prince Poniatowski, formerly of this city and now of Paris, courted his niece, Miss Maud Burke, who is now the wife of Sir Bache Cunard. Poniatowski, after this unsuccessful courtship, came to California and later on married his present wife, Miss Beth Sperry of Stockton, the sister of Mrs. William H. Crocker. The latter accompanied them to Paris, where the marriage ceremony was held. This was about two years after the late Prince Hatfieldt, a scion of a German noble house, had married Miss Huntington, the niece of Collis P. Huntington. It is said Carpentier at first approved of the attentions of Prince Poniatowski to his niece, but later on took a dislike to the young, affable and cultured man. The niece, who was dependent upon her uncle, finally parted company with him at her relative's command. It was whispered at the time that Carpentier and the prince could not agree as to the dot the niece was to get as a preliminary step towards matrimony. What marriage settlement, if any, went with the prince's marriage to the Stockton belle was never divulged.

Railroad Man Got a Surprise

J. A. Munroe of Omaha, vice-president in charge of traffic for the Union Pacific road, who has been in the city for a week or more, was telling some friends of an unusual experience he had recently. A man living in a town not far from Omaha came into his office one day and asked him to put on another train between the two places.

"Three roads run through your town already, each with a local service to and from Omaha," replied Munroe. "What do you want another one for?"

"I want to spend my money," was the reply. "I have been very prosperous and have money to spend. Our children are growing up and it is desired that they frequently visit the city theaters, concerts, etc. In short, I want them to have city advantages and still live at home. Wife and I want a train that will get them into Omaha at 5 or 6 in the evening and bring them back home at midnight. You put on such a train, keep an account of its expenses and earnings and at the end of every month if there is a deficit I will pay it."

Munroe said he gave the request serious thought and finally put on a fast steam motor coach. The result surprised him. Within two weeks the car was crowded every evening in both directions. It paid expenses the first month and has been making a profit ever since. It developed some entirely new business, much to the wonder of himself and associates.

Painter Understood Human Nature

This painter knows human nature.

Business being dull with this man, who has in his employ several journeyman painters, he was almost at his wits' end how to keep things running in his shop not long ago. One Sunday, while out walking with his wife, he saw a number of houses which attracted his attention. They were not the homes of the rich. Rather, they were the residences of the fairly well-to-do. His practiced eye could see that some summers and winters had gone by since a painter's brush had touched them. One in particular needed painting very badly. Hunting up the owner the next day he surprised him by remarking:

"I want to paint your house and—"

"Can't afford it now. Wait until fall," was the interruption.

"Listen," persisted the boss painter. "I will paint it and charge you nothing provided you never tell your neighbors. I'll take my chances of getting the contract to paint other houses in your neighborhood after I finish with yours. This is the reason of my offer to paint your residence free of cost."

Objecting at first, the man finally consented to the proposition. The boss soon had his men at work and they turned out an extra good job. By contrast, the other near-by homes then looked worse than they really were. A week later the man next door gave an order to paint his place. The boss is now on his sixth job in that vicinity and his face is wearing a broad smile. The man he did not charge has, in addition, signed with him on favorable terms to paint his business building.

"People are like sheep," says this painter. "Start them right and they follow one another all right."

Took the Hint and Stayed Home

But few of the officials and men of the Santa Fe Railroad, who expected to attend the Johnson-Flynn prize fight at Las Vegas on the company's road, got there owing to the word that was quietly passed about that President E. P. Ripley did not approve of such things. The president did not issue instructions to that effect, but an "unofficial" order was set in motion of the purport that Ripley and the higher officials would be greatly displeased to find out that any of their subordinates had been present at the pugilistic affair. Many of the minor officials thought they could go under the plea that business called them to that part of the country around the Fourth of July holidays. They, however, took the hint and remained at home. If any of them really have business in that region they did not start until July 5. This recalls the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight at Carson, Nev., back in 1895, when several Southern Pacific clerks and minor officials who attended were quietly dropped from their positions. They did not, however, lose their jobs simply because they were present. They were reported as having done considerable betting. Having positions where they handled money, their superiors got frightened at this phase of their character and dropped them.

Baroness Surprised Her Audience

Baroness Von Sutner, the international peace advocate of Vienna, was very frank in repeating stories told her by Andrew Carnegie of his conversations with the German Emperor a year or more ago when she addressed the Commonwealth Club at the Palace last Saturday. At the conclusion of the affair her woman secretary remarked:

"Baroness, you never told of those conservations before. Don't you think it was a mistake to narrate them here?"

"My dear, we're far away from the reach of lese majeste in San Francisco, so don't be worried," was the laughing reply.

The baroness caused a decided sensation at one part of her address which the daily papers did not mention. Carnegie had told her that he urged Emperor William to take the lead in the peace movement.

"I am taking a lead, but my method is different from yours," Carnegie said the Kaiser replied.

"Yes, the method is different," remarked the baroness. "We all know about different methods. For instance, when I clasp my hands in playful supplication we know that is one method. But when I do this with my hands (and she extended them out from the end of her nose as any angry boy might do) we all know what that method means."

Her secretary explained to several ladies at the conclusion of the address that the latter use of the hands was not an uncommon thing among all classes on the continent.

Henry Miller's Vast Holdings

Henry Miller, the cattle king, at the age of 85 continues to be the largest single land owner in California, and the entire West for that matter. He owns 14,500,000 acres of land in this State and after he is gone this great landed domain will be dominated no doubt for years by the Miller & Lux Company, his corporate name and entity. A certain banker in talking about Miller's land holdings the other day made the rather surprising statement that, in spite of the rapid subdivision of country lands which has been going on in various parts of California during the past five or six years, thirty-five men continue to own one-seventh of all the land in the State. The latter means that these thirty-five men each own an average of 523,601 acres. If the remaining area in California were equally divided among the inhabitants it would mean, this banker states, an average holding of about forty acres. The holdings of the thirty-five land barons represent about 180,000 more acres than are contained in the states of Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Vermont and New Hampshire. Thomas B. Walker, the Minneapolis lumber king; James B. Haggan of New York, a Pittsburg syndicate and the Los Angeles syndicate which recently bought the 2,700,000 and odd acreage of Truxton Beale and his two sisters are among the thirty-five largest landowners.

Chicago Also Provincial

Countess Louise de Ferree, the Parisian authoress and a woman of charming personality who is enjoying life on a ranch she bought some months ago near Petaluma for her young son as well as herself, was glad to read in recent dispatches from Chicago that Gertrude Atherton exercised what she thinks her very proper right and privilege of smoking in public at a club dinner. That Mrs. Atherton's use of a cigarette on that occasion should have caused a sensation and some criticism led the countess to stamp her slippers foot and remark that Chicago is just as provincial as she has found San Francisco and its environs. The countess dearly loves a smoke herself and is impatient that it should cause comment and the straining of the neck of curiosity. It is a habit, or diversion, that can be abused like anything else, she tells her friends, but after all is said and done it should be, even in this country, considered the pink of propriety as compared with the gum-chewing habit of so many American women. The titled Petaluma ranch owner is by no means an excessive smoker. Six or seven of the daintiest and perfumed variety of the weed is her limit. One or two are indispensable at the dinner hour. In her literary and correspondence work she finds a smoke now and then a source of inspiration. She does not advise women to smoke just for the sake of doing so. But if they feel so inclined and get enjoyment thereby they should be permitted to do so without any fuss and feathers. By no means is the smoking of a cigarette inconsistent with womanly refinement.

June Brides Were Plentiful

June brides from all sections of the coast have been, with their husbands, a large element of the patronage of the local hotels during the past four weeks. The St. Francis has had as many as ten newly married young couples register in one day. The Manx had forty of these couples during June. The record in this respect of the Stewart and Palace has been equally as good, if not better. They have come from the towns of the State and coast either already married or to have the ceremony performed here. The latter fact explains why the hotel janitors have been gathering up a lot of rice in their nightly sweepings. Most of the clerks now think they are unwise indeed in picking out their groom. Chief Clerk McCullough of the St. Francis registered five of these couples in one night and correctly spotted them all. Two prospective grooms hailing from Bakersfield came to town to claim their brides. Registering at the Stewart, they waited until the last moment to call for a Baptist minister to conduct the double wedding. Most all the ministers of that denomination had engagements. The result was that the entire office force of the hotel was kept busy for two hours before one could be obtained. The four young contracting parties had to have a Baptist minister. They would not have anyone else. It was 9:30 at night before one appeared on the scene and great was their delight.

THE KNAVE.

TOTS TAUGHT BEST WAY TO PLAY

Technical Skill of Perfect Care of Bodies Shown by Public Parks.

Character of Little 'Uns Is Being Built Up in Proper Manner.

An army of little folks has invaded Mosswood Park playground since its opening fully equipped pleasure resort under the supervision of the Oakland Playground Commission. With a formal dedication ceremony the gates of the playground were thrown open to the public about a week ago, but only recently the apparatus was installed.

For many months the tots, eagerly waiting for the playground to be ready for occupancy, Everything had been carefully arranged upon the premises. The swings, slides, and seesaws are shaded by large elm, fir and eucalyptus trees which make a picturesque background. The girl's and boy's divisions which are under the direction of skilled playground directors, are divided by a wire partition. Both apartments have the same equipment and the slogan "fair play" prevails throughout the reservation. From morning until dusk little citizens frolic about the place. The merriment commences the moment the park is open and lasts until the closing signal is given. In their bloomers the girls engage in the various athletic activities and have sought to imitate the boys in many of the outdoor games. Many strenuous exercises are now absorbing the attention of the members of the fairer sex. A variety of sports, which develop the mind as well as the body, will soon be introduced by Miss Winifred van Hagen, formerly supervisor of physical training and corrective work in the public schools of Pasadena, who has been appointed director of the girls' work in Mosswood Park playground.

PLAY HELPS CHARACTER.

Children residing in the vicinity of Mosswood Park playground, Moss Avenue and Webster street, are being initiated into the different methods of play, which aim to build character. Every effort is being made to cultivate a spirit of harmonious team work.

"To train the children to accept defeat in an agreeable manner and organize play," is one of the many problems of the modern playground," declared Miss Van Hagen in an interview yesterday afternoon. "The girls of Mosswood Park playground do not know exactly how to play as they have never been trained in the games, which are proving a novelty to them. Many of them have never played in a playground, but they are rapidly becoming acquainted with the appliances, which are constantly in use."

"For the purpose of giving them technical skill and control of their bodies, volley ball will be one of the feature games for the girls. This sport disciplines the child as well as gives it a certain power of discrimination, accuracy and quickness. Every game has its peculiar function. The pastimes have been selected for the physical and mental development of the young Americans. Every child requires a different form of exercise. The boys and girls are carefully studied by the playground workers, who are making an effort to strengthen the weak. By means of organized play they receive balance, which is acquired by engaging in the numerous activities."

TEAM ORGANIZED.

The pioneer volleyball team of Mosswood Park playground was formed last Saturday afternoon by Miss Van Hagen. She declares it to be one of the most refined games for girls. They have become very enthusiastic over the diversion and are now receiving instruction in the elements of the sport. The young women have been requested to wear bloomers while practicing. However, no rules have been made regarding the style of costumes to be worn by the youngsters. In fact no regulations have been announced for that reservation by the Oakland playground commission.

Among those who have signed the roll for the volleyball team are Anna Drucker, Bernice Mulhern, Madeline Glavin, Alva Wolcott, Gertrude Deener, Martha Keller, Gertrude Hansen, Henrietta Meyer, Mabel Starr, Eva Moore, Louisa Galindo, Marie King and Eileen Hogan.

No discrimination is permitted on the playgrounds. The clubs and teams are open to all the children. The directors are endeavoring to enroll all the boys and girls in the organizations, for social purposes. The sons and daughters of the wealthy class mingle with the middle and poorer set. No snobbery is tolerated. There true democracy exists.

BASEBALL POPULAR.

Without shoes, the boys play baseball on the lawns, which will be converted into a diamond in the near future. The lads are being trained by Elbert Vall, supervisor of the boys' department of Mosswood Park playground. The youths who are not eligible by age or size to join the teams find pleasure on the jumping house, swings and slides. The babies are seen throughout the day in the sand box, where they follow the "mud-pie industry."

The showers for the children are very popular. After the various games, the boys and girls are refreshed by the cold water, which flows freely all day.

The tennis courts are open to the adults as well as the little ones. Many expert players have played there. Teams have been established by the tennis champions of this city.

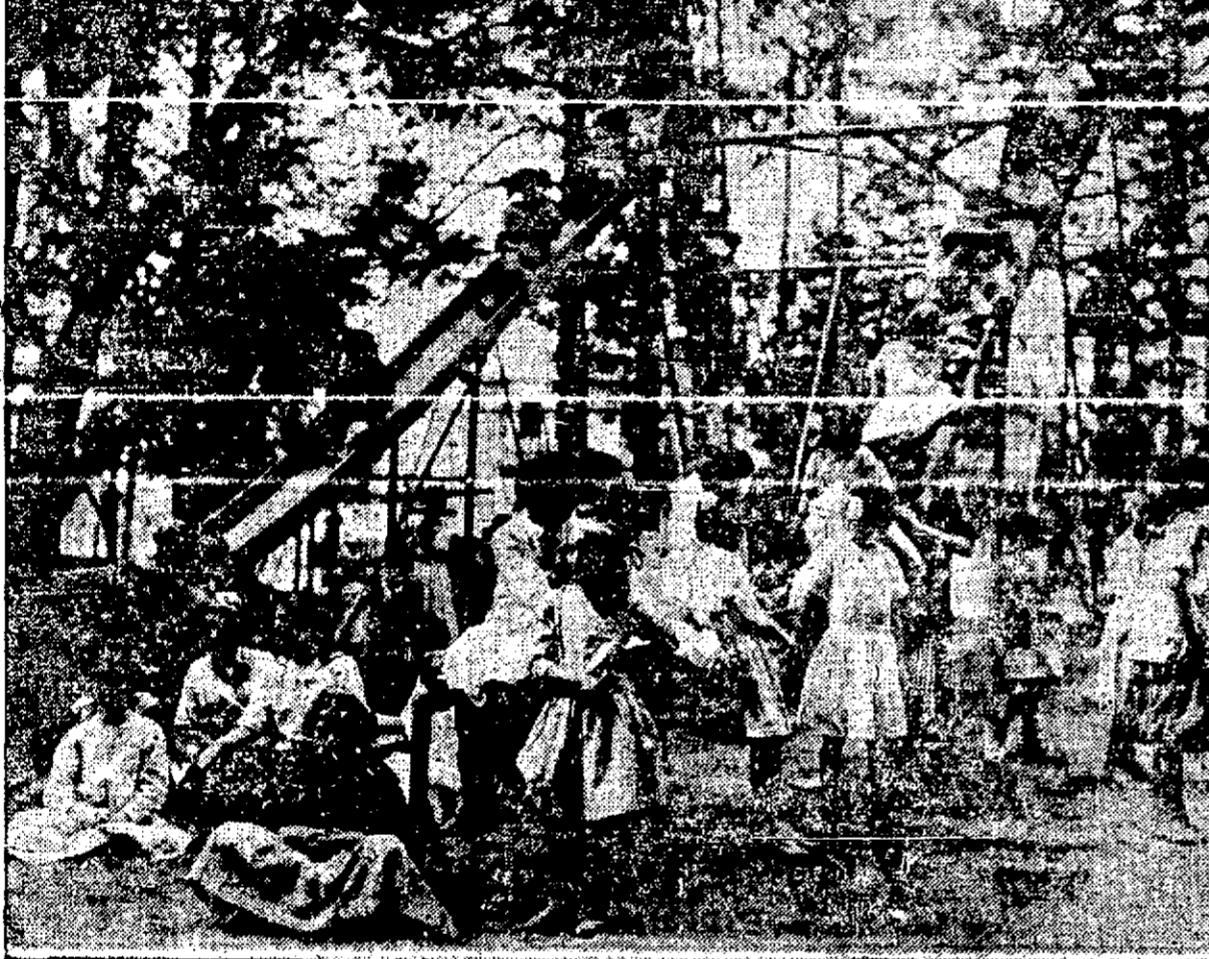

BUILDINGS REMODELED.

The old-fashioned buildings of the French style of architecture, which were erected nearly half a century ago, have been remodeled. The structure, which was occupied by the servants during the time the Moss family resided there, have been converted into rooms for the showrooms. The main edifice has been arranged with apartments for meetings, club reading-rooms. For the accommodation of the public, there will be a dining-room, where luncheon will be served.

There is movement on foot for the establishment of a recreation center at Mosswood Park, which will be the first of its kind on this side of the bay. It will be a meeting-place for the young men, women and children, who are employed during the day. Public entertainments and dances will be conducted there.

"In Chicago there are 40 recreation centers," said Elbert Vall, who was the California representative to the recreation congress recently held in Cleveland. Throughout the East the recreation parks are in full swing. People gather at these resorts in droves. The playgrounds and centers have become factors in the social life of the Easterners."

MOSQUITO HAS DREAD MALADY

Black Fever Germs Found by Scientists in Stomach of Mosquito.

LONDON, July 6.—The way in which human beings get infected with black fever, the deadliest disease on earth, with a mortality of 99 in every 100 cases, has been discovered at last, according to advices received by the Liverpool School of Tropical Medicine. These came from Surgeon-General Bannerjee, director of the government bacteriological laboratory in the Madras presidency. The discovery was made by Captain W. S. Paton of the Indian medical service.

The disease is very deadly in Southern Europe, the Sudan and tropical Asia. It is called by the Arabs "Kha'zair," and in India is known as "dum dum" fever. It has long been considered as a form of chronic malaria, causing irregular fever, enlargement of the spleen, and great wasting. It is endemic in India, China and the Soudan, in some of the Greek islands and in parts of Sicily. In Assam, some years ago, it appeared as an epidemic, and spread slowly up the Brahmaputra valley, killing off practically the whole population in villages after village.

It has long been considered as a form of chronic malaria, causing irregular fever, enlargement of the spleen, and great wasting. It is endemic in India, China and the Soudan, in some of the Greek islands and in parts of Sicily. In Assam, some years ago, it appeared as an epidemic, and spread slowly up the Brahmaputra valley, killing off practically the whole population in villages after village.

Sir William Leishman of the Army Medical Research Department of the Indian Medical Service has identified the parasite in the blood of a human being. Captain Paton, after examining on animals, now announces that the germ, which is quite unlike the parasite of malaria, is developed in the stomach of a bedbug, and also in the stomach of a mosquito, either of which insects may thus transmit the disease.

The black fever germ is apparently identical with or almost exactly like the one that is responsible for the Asiatic ailment known as the "Bouton d'Orient."

The Case of Andrew.

According to Secretary MacVeagh, A. Piatt Andrew did not resign from the Treasury Department, but was discharged after making vain efforts to hold his job. He had repeatedly been requested to resign, but pleaded for grace till he was threatened with summary dismissal unless he sent in his resignation at once. Then he wrote his letter attacking Secretary MacVeagh. It was plainly an attempt to revenge himself on the head of the Treasury Department for his dismissal. It was intended to be a campaign document. Andrew was one of the subordinate officials inherited from the Roosevelt administration, who have given Taft so much trouble and created so much disturbance in the various departments. They have been intractable and insubordinate, assuming the right to do as they pleased and defy their superiors in authority. Pinchot set the example, and one after another the Roosevelt hold-overs have followed his lead. Because Roosevelt put them in office they have denied the right of anybody to discipline or discharge them. They have been in continuous rebellion against authority. Taft made a great mistake in not coming down on them hard at the beginning. If he had begun by throwing the malcontents out of office at the start instead of temporizing and trying to harmonize the conflict between the heads of departments and their subordinates, he would be in a much better position than he is today. Mild measures merely emboldened the insurgents to make still more trouble. Every kicking subordinate posed as a defender of public interests threatened by incompetent or corrupt superiors, and kept every department of the government in a ferment by his mousing and complaints. Taft should have dismissed them summarily the moment they began to make a disturbance and appeal to the opposition press to support them in their contumacy.

Roosevelt missed a great chance the other day when he could not find the boy who shied a rock at Mrs. Roosevelt, and so couldn't give him a licking. Even if he can't whip Taft and the Taft men, he might have been able to conquer a ten-year-old.

Aftermath of Sane Fourth.

Instead of Friday, July 5, being turned into a day of sorrow in countless homes in the bay cities as a result of youthful indulgence in a dynamite Fourth with its toy cannons, blank cartridge guns and crackers of various proportions, it had more of a Monday's aspect and hundreds of thousands had but to recover slight fatigue caused by harmless pastime spent among the hills and in the parks and playgrounds. Recollections of a pleasant holiday delighted many a household that might have been in gloom if the methods of celebration in vogue several years ago had been indulged in. That the "safe and sane Fourth" has come to stay wherever it has been tried is apparent. Young America can be taught patriotism in other ways that are just as stirring to young blood as din and confusion and the maiming of body and limb. Patriotic music and exercises with pageants of historical character will impress on the mind the reasons of Bunker Hill, Bull Run and Santiago more thoroughly than firecrackers ever did and in a safer manner.

Never before in the history of Alameda county were there so few accidents on the Fourth. The average was even below that of ordinary days and the emergency hospitals, instead of being the scene of pain and death, experienced somewhat of a holiday.

This Will Explain It.

"Murder will out" is true of a number of things besides slaughter, and the real "low down" on the latest political activity of a visiting educator at the University of California has been disclosed. Professor Stockton Axson, head of the department of English literature at Princeton, who came out of the East to lecture to students at the summer school in Berkeley, said this of President Taft the other day: "Because of his inability to appreciate existing conditions and his entire confidence in his advisors, President Taft is a far more dangerous man to stand at the head of the nation than is Theodore Roosevelt."

These words, coming as they did from an educator of Axson's reputation, must have made a profound impression on his class, not to mention a few votes for the Democratic candidate for the presidency.

Had Professor Axson added, "Woodrow Wilson is my brother-in-law; we were together at Wesleyan university, I as a student and Dr. Wilson as a teacher, and at Princeton, where Wilson was president and I a professor," the class would have found the real reason for the uncalled-for attack on the President.

But perhaps the rest of Axson's lecture would not have "gone down" so well had he made that little explanation.

The Saving Fog.

Alexander McAdie, forecaster for this section of the country, recently delivered in San Francisco an address of much interest regarding climatic conditions of the bay sections. Chiefly of importance therein was his defense of the fog. He declared that for the fog, dwellers about the bay had every reason to be thankful. Rather than objecting to it, as among a minority was customary, they should welcome it.

McAdie's theory is well founded. Nor is it so much a theory as an observation of the fog's beneficial effects. Summer days when, with beaming sun, the temperature would be uncomfortably warm, are thus modified. Nights in which, without the fog, would almost stifle, are by it rendered pleasantly temperate.

The prevailing mean temperature of the months of June and July on this side of the bay is about 60 degrees, with 72 and 53 degrees as the extreme limits of variation for mean temperature. Successive summer heat, at least for any period longer than one or two days scattered throughout a season, are practically unknown, since always there is the saving of the fog and the gentle southwest breeze.

Mr. McAdie is to be thanked for pointing out this fact, which may have heretofore escaped the notice of too many of us.

The Passing of the Horse.

That the horse has become a thing of the past with the perfection of various means of motor power has become a trite saying. But neither the horse nor the automobile has been within the reach of the purse of the ordinary workingman in the past, and the changes in styles in the matter of transportation have not greatly interested the man who was reduced to using Shank's mare or to grinding away on a bicycle.

But the application of the motorcycle principle to the manufacture of automobiles is beginning to put a new phase on the subject, and it is possible that before long almost every cottage will have its little garage.

French manufacturers are responding to the demand for low-priced autos. Scores of these are being built at prices varying between $250 and $500. The cheap automobile of this type has been successfully imitated in England, and is soon to be introduced extensively in this country.

There have been inexpensive automobiles built on the established lines of the costlier type, but according to W. F. Bradley in the "Technical World," there appear to be more possibilities in working along the motorcycle rather than automobile lines. It has been found almost impossible to get below $500 on cars of the usual build, but European manufacturers have been able to produce four-wheeled motorcycles at half this price. A vehicle of this type costs little more than a high-grade cycle, the up-keep is about the same, its speed is equal to that of the two-wheeler, while its comfort is infinitely greater.

Any man who knows how to manage a motorcycle is at once familiar with this type of car. Its use is not confined to pleasure purpose, a large number being used in France for quick delivery service. In some cases the touring car type is convertible; on week days it carries drugs or meats, and Sundays and holidays it is changed by the turn of a screw into a touring car for the family.

Fish and Game Conservation.

The Sacramento Bee says the mere organization of the Fish and Game Protective Association has resulted in the public being restored to some privileges private ownership took away. Rights better describes what the public was deprived of than privileges. It is rights, not privileges, that the public demands. The Bee says the big and influential membership of the association will be very effective in obtaining desired legislation. Provided always that the activities of the association are honestly and intelligently directed. But legislation is not all that is desired. The policy of the Fish and Game Commission should be to conserve popular rights as well as the fish and game. Hitherto the officers of the commission have acted very much as if they were agents of the gun clubs and owners of private preserves. The defects in the game laws have been aggravated by the way the laws have been enforced, by the favoritism displayed and by the neglect to enforce them with intelligence, vigor and impartiality in some respects. The policy pursued in the past has not conserved game nor increased the supply of food fish, nor has it prompted obedience to the law. What the public wants is equitable laws fairly enforced, not for the benefit exclusively for gun clubs and amateur sportsmen, but for all the people.

CAPTURING ELEPHANTS

The periodical keddah operations in the Mysore elephant jungles in India afford perhaps the most exciting spectacle of this kind in the world. Catching elephants alive is greater sport than hunting them to death. Taking place about once in three years, these hunts generally come off at the time of the visit of the viceroy or some other distinguished guest.

On one occasion the elephants had been before the beaters for eight days, and were brought gently up by a line of something like a thousand men over several miles of country. Trumpets and shrill horns joined their hideous noises and drums and bamboo choppers beat incessantly.

Every eye was strained to catch the first glimpse of the approaching herd. At last a dark clump of elephants emerged from the undergrowth, lumbered into the stream with tremendous splash, and still crowding in a bunch, plodded slowly across.

Issuing from the fold of their familiar hunting place, the elephants at once entered the wide mouth of a funnel-shaped stockade strongly built of the stems of young trees, with brushwood interlaced to conceal the trap. A minute later they entered a small palisaded enclosure at the end of the funnel, and a heavy gate immediately fell down and closed the entrance.

The big beasts were now in a circular stockade of only about 40 feet in diameter. There were fourteen of them, and as the spectators mounted the platform erected on the outside of the palisade a scene of wild interest met the eye.

The trapped elephants surged around the enclosure in a pushing, struggling mass. They packed themselves together exactly like a football team. At one moment, with their heads to the center, they would be shoving against one another and wheeling about in the center of the stockade, at another the leaders would apply their heads to a portion of the barriers and the remainder pushing behind, the whole pack would throw their weight against the timbers in a vain effort to force a passage.

Two trained elephants, with their mahouts on their backs, were then brought in for the next stage of the proceedings. This was the roping up of the captives preparatory to their removal. There were two methods of procedure. The first was for the bigger animals, and consisted of maneuvering them to the side of the stockade so that their hind legs could be lashed to the upright logs. The trained animals pitilessly hustled the herd. Pushing, prodding, hurling their weight in short charges under the guidance of the mahouts, they kept the prisoners constantly on the move, so as to single out the larger animals. Meanwhile the ropes went through the apertures of the inner wall waiting for a chance to put a slip knot on a leg, keeping a wary eye upon the movements of the untrained brutes and dodging back into the palisade at the sign of danger.

KOREAN PLOTTERS SOON TO GO ON TRIAL.

More Than 100 Persons to Face Court That May Deprive Them of Life.

JAPANESE ACCUSED OF ATTACKING CHRISTIANS

Altitude of Missionaries Toward Case Takes Officials by Surprise.

SEOUL, Korea, July 6.—The cases of the Koreans charged with plotting against the government, and the life of the governor-general are to come up for hearing shortly. The evidence in the hands of the public prosecutor is said to be voluminous. In all 102 persons are held.

The interesting feature of these arrests is that nearly all of the accused are professing Christians. This has caused much comment, and the accusation has been made that the Japanese government was directing a campaign especially against Christians because of uneasiness lest the influence of the church might become unpleasantly powerful in Japan's new possession.

The official of Korea, including the governor-general, express surprise at the attitude taken by a number of the leading missionaries. The governor-general, Count Terauchi himself, has said that there did not exist in the official mind the faintest suspicion of any complicity or foreknowledge on the part of the missionary body in connection with this plot. He declared that it was the desire of the government to co-operate heartily with the missions, and said: "I and my successor will always live up to the promises and the program laid down when Japan first assumed the control and government of Korea. The instructions of the Emperor are that religion and politics must be kept apart. In other words, the State and Church form two different branches. Both, however, tend to the same goal, which is the betterment of the people, and both must co-operate."

TRUTH IS SHY.

General Akashi, the chief of the police, said that the evidence of a plot was, he believed, conclusive, but the great difficulty was to secure truthful statements from the Koreans concerned. These were mostly young men with advanced ideas—students—and he admitted most of them were students in the mission schools. He said that in the past large numbers of Koreans had professed Christianity in order to secure the protection and the assistance of the foreign missionaries against the abuses and injustices of the Korean Government.

After the Japanese had annexed Korea, there existed a large element of discontent. And because of the sympathy felt by the missionary for his Korean scholars, or so-called converts, these latter believed that the missionaries would support them even though they might plot sedition. General Akashi, who had been accused of much harshness and dealing with this case, said that he did not believe statements made by prisoners who asserted that the missionaries had actually attended meetings where this conspiracy was discussed.

The prisoners are all confined in jail in the center of Seoul, where some 400 other prisoners are confined. The prison is crowded. The prisoners sit closely together and occupy just sufficient space to enable him to lie down. However, the Korean in his own home lives and moves in small space. The cells are clean and thoroughly well ventilated. The prisoners all appear to be cleanly clothed and to be in good health. One or two of the better classes of prisoners are confined in more spacious cells, and one of them, a parson formerly Minister of Education, has a cell all himself with matting and ample bedding.

FREQUENTLY PUBLISHED.

The accusation has been frequently published, and is believed by many of the missionaries that torture has been used in the preliminary examinations to elicit testimony which might prove the case for the police. The Governor-General and General Akashi positively deny the use of any form of torture or of violence in the prison.

Some prisoners who have been released have shown marks which they declared were caused by torture, such as hanging by the thumbs, flogging and mental influences. Analysis of their stories does not prove the truth of the statements. Certainly none of the prisoners now confined shows any outward evidence of torture.

A number of missionaries express themselves as satisfied that a plot did exist.

The trial will be open and the prisoners will be given counsel. The evidence will all be read in open court, and appeals to two higher courts are permissible.

The common belief is that the case will develop a conspiracy in which a number of educated young Koreans have been connected as the leaders. It is asserted that Koreans now living in America and certain other persons who have been connected with Korea's past but who are now living in America, will be shown to have contributed money and advice. Certain of the funds were the recipients of these funds and are known to have distributed them. There is reason to believe that some of these were innocently a part of the plot.

GIVES PLOT IMPETUS.

The revolution in China gave a considerable impetus to this particular conspiracy, which sought a revolution and the restoration of Korean independence. The assassination of the Governor-General was discussed as a part of this conspiracy, it is believed; and the assassination of Prince Ito, former prime minister and the attempted assassination of the premier of Korea, all believed to have been the work of Christian converts, lend considerable credence to the present charge.

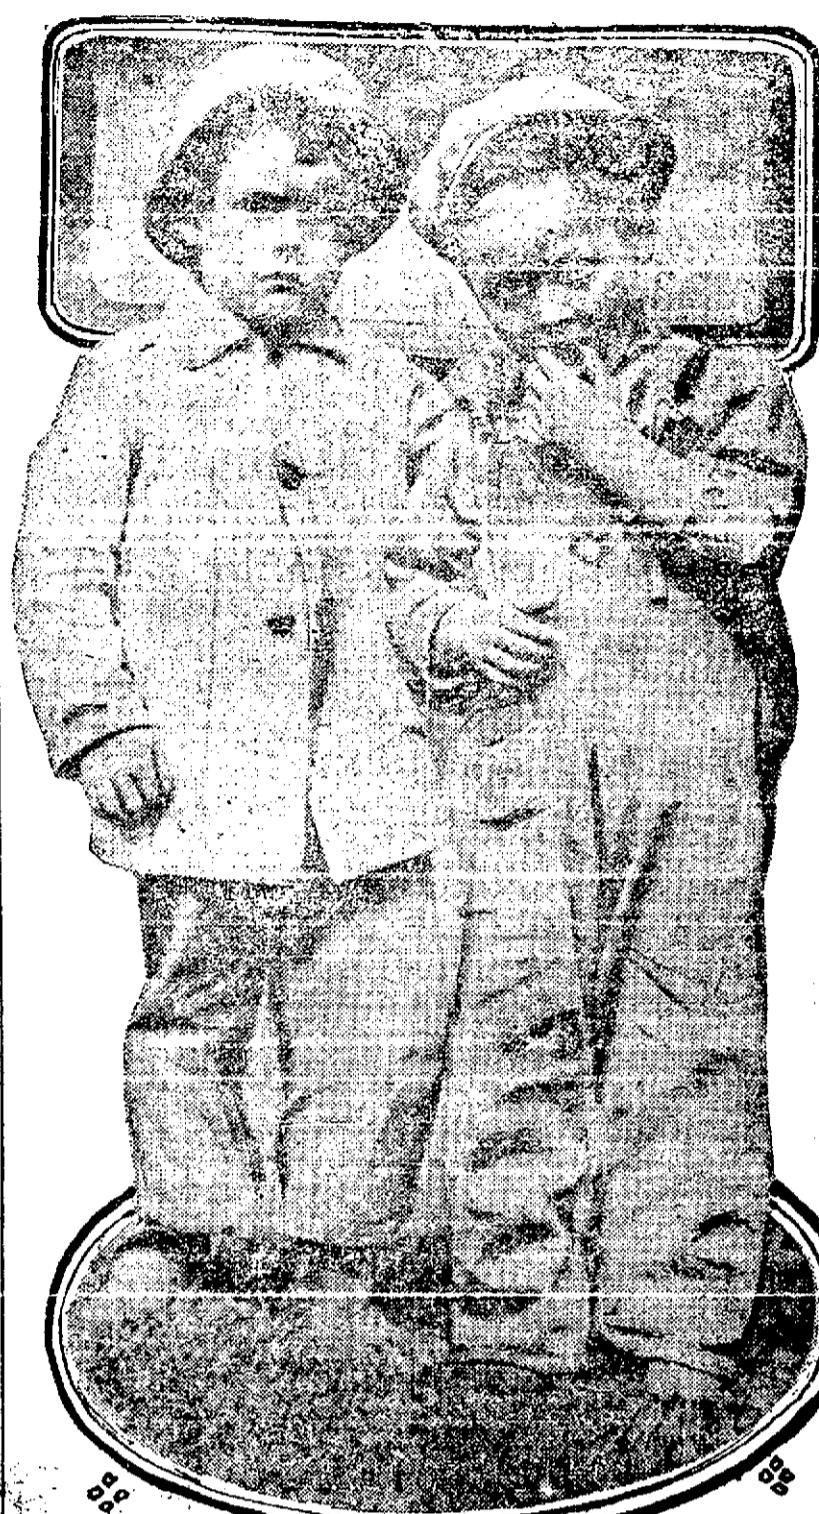

The Governor-General has made a personal request to the chief of police and prosecution that the young man be dealt with as leniently as possible.

The missionaries in Korea almost without exception pay tribute to the present administration, while some of them are disturbed lest the work of the Christian church in Korea should receive too heavy a blow as a result of these prosecutions.

PLAYGROUND BENEFITS MOSSWOOD PALS PHOTO EPITOMIZES MOVEMENT'S NEED

"THE MOSSWOOD PALS," AN ARTLESS TRIBUNE SNAPSHOT OF TWO LITTLE PLAYGROUND ENTHUSIAS

He wears my clothes, and I wear his; What's his is mine, what's mine is Al's. There ain't no thing too good for him. 'Cause me and him are pals.

On this fine Sunday morning THE TRIBUNE introduces to its readers a photograph, which, like the famous one of "Smiling Joe," typifies a condition so touching that no heart-string can fail to throb a sympathetic and intelligent response.

The photograph of "Smiling Joe" pictured a real character in the Children's Hospital of New York. Where a brave, lovely little lad, whose spine was hopelessly deformed, lay always strapped to a board and never once stopped smiling. "Smiling Joe's" photograph was circulated all over the country; it penetrated the most crushed hearts, and nickels, dimes, and dollars, and then hundreds of dollars, began to pour into New York, until today a magnificent institution for incurable children graces Long Island sound, and the memory of "Smiling Joe" will endure long years after his frail, pale-shaped body has disappeared.

THE TRIBUNE today presents a picture of "Pals." It was taken by a staff photographer of this paper, who was sent to the opening of Mosswood Park playground. The photographer took picture after picture of romping, happy children, well-dressed, well-fed, frolicking from court to court, with shouts of ecstasy. Then he suddenly happened upon "The Pals," and his newspaper instinct told him that here was THE

"Pals" posed, the picture was taken, developed, printed, and here it is published, epitomizing the why and wherefore arguments of the playground advocates. Of all those shouting children at Mosswood Park that day none had a better time than "The Pals"; none had a better right to be there; none profited more by that well-equipped playground. Study "The Pals" well. They will stand scrutiny; they are the future citizens of Oakland; the men of tomorrow. They are ready to accept what the city has to give them and to treat the city and their neighbors as they themselves are treated now.

Note the proud, determined face of Joe and the mischievous dark brown eyes of Al; note the protecting chummy hand upon the shoulder; and if "Pals" appeals to you, lend your support to the playground movement and give Oakland's youngsters the rightful inheritance of childhood.

BREAK INTO JAIL; STEAL 'NEAR BEER'

Roseburg Attains Rare Distinction When Bastile Is Looted.

ROSEBURG, Ore., July 6.—Other towns have had their jail-breaks, but Roseburg claims the distinction of having a jail broken into. Wednesday two deputy sheriffs went to Myrtle Creek a "dry" town and confiscated a barrel of "near-beer," which it was believed approached the real article closer than the law permits.

The barrel of beer was brought here and incarcerated in the county jail pending its shipment to the state university at Eugene.

There is reason to believe that some of these were innocently a part of the plot.

GIVES PLOT IMPETUS.

The revolution in China gave a considerable impetus to this particular conspiracy, which sought a revolution and the restoration of Korean independence. The assassination of the Governor-General was discussed as a part of this conspiracy, it is believed; and the assassination of Prince Ito, former prime minister and the atttempted assassination of the premier of Korea, all believed to have been the work of Christian converts, lend considerable credence to the present charge.

The Governor-General has made a personal request to the chief of police and prosecution that the young man be dealt with as leniently as possible.

The missionaries in Korea almost without exception pay tribute to the present administration, while some of them are disturbed lest the work of the Christian church in Korea should receive too heavy a blow as a result of these prosecutions.

LEAGUE CADETS TO GO INTO CAMP

Three Hundred Lads Will Take Part in the Annual Encampment.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—Three hundred members of the League of the Cross Cadet Band are engaged in preparations for the annual encampment in Santa Barbara. The cadets will leave Saturday, July 20, on the steamer Harvard. The return voyage will be made on the steamer Yale, arriving here Monday July 22.

Colonel Benjamin L. McKinley, recently appointed to succeed Colonel James R. Power as commanding officer, will be in charge of the encampment. Major John L. Flynn is chairman of the camp committee. The regiment will be accompanied by Father Richard Collins, spiritual director. In honor of the retiring colonel the camp will this year be designated as Camp Power.

Delegations from Companies A, B, C, D and E of this city, Company N of Oakland and the League of the Cross Cadet Band, under Lieutenant Ernest G. Williams, will attend. Besides a large number of friends of the regiment will make the trip.

Santa Barbara is already making elaborate preparations to entertain the delegates, who are expected to remain there until Aug. 1. The barbecue, Spanish dinner and automobile trials through the surrounding country and other features will serve to vary the monotony of routine camp life. A large dancing pavilion is being erected just outside the limits of the camp lines.

Assisting Major Flynn in making arrangements are Captain Frank J. Grimes, Company I; Captain Milo F. Kent, A; Captain H. J. Leonard, N; Captain James R. Smith, B; Captain J. A. Riddell, and Lieutenant William J. O'Dea, C. Lieutenant James R. Kelly will have charge of the commissary.

MAIL CARRIERS WILL FLY.

This summer on a great discovery.

Progress rides on the air. Soon we may see Uncle Sam's mail carriers flying in all directions, transporting mail. People take a wonderful interest in a discovery that benefits them. That's why Dr. King's New Plaster of Paris, cough, colds and other ills, and lung diseases, is the most popular medicine in America. "It cured me of a dreadful cough," writes Mrs. J. F. Davis, Stickney Center, Mass. After doctor's treatment and all other remedies had failed. For coughs, colds and other ills, and the tree and 2¢ created the crop is an unusually large one in full fruit.

Housewives Abolish Drudgery in Your Home

INTERIOR VIEW OF THE ACME WET WASH LAUNDRY

READ THIS and Seriously Consider It

Think of the drudgery, inconvenience and worry it will take from you by a nominal outlay of money.

The Life of Your Clothes depends upon the laundry as much as on the quality of the goods, therefore we not only save you time, trouble and hard work, but save you considerable money in prolonging the life of your clothes.

The above cut shows the interior of the Acme Wet Wash Laundry. By way of explaining the term "Wet Wash" we desire to say that your bed and table linens and articles of wearing apparel are taken to the laundry, carefully graded and sorted as to color and texture, and by aid of the very latest and up-to-date facilities and methods, in the hands of careful and skilled operators, are washed, the water extracted and are returned to you ready for starching and ironing, each patron's linen and apparel being washed separately.

Our Wet Wash Laundry is patronized by all classes, those of large as well as of moderate means finding it a great convenience to have us wash their goods, leaving but the starching and ironing to be done at home.

The Wet Wash Laundry eliminates from the home practically all of the evils incident to "wash day," viz: Laborious work, waste of energy, washing material and fuel, and last, but not least, loss of "temper." All of which are avoided for the small outlay of 50 cents, which is our minimum charge for fifty pieces or less, and 1 cent additional for each piece in excess of fifty.

For highly-colored articles, blankets, quilts, comforters, jumpers and overalls, wool skirts, coats and pants, sweaters, etc., requiring to be washed by hand, an additional moderate charge is made.

We call for and deliver in all parts of Oakland, Alameda, Berkeley and Fruitvale, delivery being made within thirty-six hours after collection of bundle.

THRILLING CLIMAX TO DRAMA OF FREE-LOVE
CHASE ACROSS CONTINENT ENDS

Husband Traps Wife and Her Lover of Younger Days Across Bay.

Tears Serve to Add Pathos to Scene in Dingy Police Office.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—The "eternal triangle," embellished by a cross-country trip of two soulmates, the wronged, but forgiving husband, bent on saving his wife, warrants, detectives, a disappearance and discovery, provided scenery for an interesting domestic drama that was staged late this afternoon in the office of the captain of detectives.

The central figures were Mrs. Pearl Shrontz, vivacious and beautiful, her husband, Dr. J. S. Shrontz, a prominent physician of Martinsburg, Ohio; his father, Dr. J. S. Shrontz, of Knox county, Ohio, and the man in the case, Robert Warrington, a commercial traveler.

Warrington and Mrs. Shrontz were classmates at a little school in Zanesville, Ohio, and when they chanced to meet three weeks ago in the same town the old love rambles kindled anew and they eloped, coming secretly to San Francisco and engaging rooms at 615 Sixth Avenue.

WRETCHED WOMAN.

"He told me that the customs and laws of the world were never designed to fit such a case as ours," sobbed the disillusioned woman tonight. "Robert and I seemed destined for each other. It was a mistake that we never married, and when I had the opportunity to join him I thought we could start life all over again. Robert said he could get work easily out here, but he has failed, and our money gave out, and I realize now that I have sacrificed everything. I am a miserable wretched woman."

When the Ohio physician learned that his wife had eloped with Warrington he put detectives on the trail, and, with his father, started in pursuit. They followed the couple to Denver, Salt Lake City, Reno and finally to San Francisco, where the trail was lost until local detectives, with a baggage check as a clue, succeeded in tracing them to the little flat in the Richmond district, where they were living under assumed names.

Dramatically the principal characters faced each other this evening in a dimly-lighted room at police headquarters. Warrington was defiant and sullen, the woman on the verge of nervous prostration, the husband stern and his aged father sorrowful.

FATHER IN TEARS.

The elder Shrontz was a classmate at Wesleyan University with the father of his daughter-in-law, and had done his best to encourage his son's suit and marriage. The blow was a severe one to him, and he finally excused himself and left the place in tears.

"Well, don't let me go so terribly," sobbed Mrs. Shrontz, falling on her knees at her husband's feet. "I was hypnotized. I do not seem to remember anything that had happened since I left you. I do not ask forgiveness, but for God's sake take me back to my mother. She will not turn me away."

The physician ignored the woman at his feet, but turned to Detective Callahan, who made the arrest, and remarked:

WANTS TO SAVE WIFE.

"I have guided my actions so far with the sole hope of restraining my wife from sinking deeper into this man fully abandoned her. She will go back with me to her mother, and I will return to my home. I will see that she is given proper protection on the trip."

The two physicians, accompanied by the weeping woman, then left the police station in a closed cab, with the announced intention of making the return trip at once. Warrington, who is being held for vagrancy, may be ultimately released as no charge has been placed against him.

Mrs. Shrontz comes of a very prominent family. Her father, Dr. J. H. Rausse, is dead, but two of her brothers-in-law are Methodist ministers, and her people have always been strict in religious matters.

Finally Carries Out Threat of Suicide

"Wolf, Wolf," Cry Unheeded Until Too Late to Prevent Tragedy.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—"I am going upstairs and finish it now." This was the threat made by Peter Stademann, a bartender, 59 years old, and had the warning been heeded he would not have been found early tonight in a dying condition in his home, 2480 Twenty-third Street. His hint of self-destruction, however, was like a cry of "Wolf, wolf" of fables, as he had often threatened to kill himself. Mr. Stademann found his husband sitting in the bathroom with a tube attached to the gas jet in his mouth. He died soon afterward.

DEAP FOR LIFE.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., July 6.—Mrs. Ima V. Corbett, 26, of the Corbett family, was found hanging from a window in her right hand, and the window frame was broken. She was found hanging from a window in her right hand, and the window frame was broken. She was found hanging from a window in her right hand, and the window frame was broken.

C. S. BAKER WEDS MISS ROSALIE HILL
BRIDE IS MEMBER OF FAMOUS FAMILY

CECIL S. BAKER AND WIFE, WHOSE WEDDING WAS CELEBRATED IN THIS CITY YESTERDAY AFTERNOON

Comes From Her Eastern Home to Marry Oaklander

At a simple ceremony performed late yesterday at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Baker, 2327 Webster street, Miss Rosalie Hill of Cresco, Pennsylvania, became the bride of Cecil S. Baker of this city. The wedding, which was performed by the Rev. William Day Simonds, pastor of the Unitarian church, in the presence of members of the two families only, followed immediately after the arrival of the bride-to-be from the East. After a wedding supper, Mr. and Mrs. Baker went to their new home on Navy avenue, where they will reside.

The bride is a member of a family famous in California history, being a granddaughter of Barton Hill, for many years manager of the old California theater in San Francisco, in its most renowned days. The father of the bride, who of recent years has made her home in Pennsylvania, was connected with the staff of the Alta California and an aunt, Miss Marion Hill, is still known as a writer.

Mrs. Annie E. Dickinson of Los Gatos, widow of General John H. Dickinson, one of the guests at the wedding, is an aunt of Miss Hill.

Baker is a young business man of the city, a graduate of the Oakland high school, where he was a member of the Phi Lambda Epsilon fraternity. He is also a University of Michigan man, having attended college at Ann Arbor. He is a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity and of the Theta Nu Epsilon honor society. It was while East that Baker made the acquaintance of his bride.

Mr. Baker is a well-known author.

Gossip of the Ring

By BERT LOWRY.

HE air is still smoky with the talk of the Rivers and Wolgast scrap in the south. From the southland comes the word that Rivers hasn't lost any prestige as a result of the defeat. While a majority of the fans acknowledge that Wolgast had a lead at the time of the unfortunate ending of the contest in the thirteenth round, they still claim that in view of the condition of the champion when he got to his feet, Rivers had an excellent chance being declared the winner.

On the other hand, Harder, the official keeper and the fellow that held the bell for Rivers say that the bell rang before the Mexican was knocked out. The referee showed where the blow was struck; and Wolgast's fist struck the spot that Welsh had ordered both men to their seats and proceeded with the fight.

WHAT WELSH HAD TO SAY. Yesterday the writer called on Jack and the referee explained the action as seen by him. In his opinion that Rivers had been cleanly knocked out. The referee showed where the blow was struck; and Wolgast's fist struck the spot that Welsh had ordered both men to their seats and proceeded with the fight.

MARTIN SHERIDAN

To the writer, Welsh said that he was anxious to take a crack at the former champion again. He is willing to make the weight 123 at either 3 o'clock in the afternoon or at 6 o'clock, just as it suits Hogan, and will wager his side bet that he can beat the Southland man.

McCarthy, the promoter of the fight, said that he would have to go after Hogan today and set forth his terms as well as Burns' and if Hogan is anxious for a match here is his chance. A meeting between the two men is to be arranged as soon as possible.

WELSH SEEKS A RETURN MATCH.

Mathias Al. Hirschmidt, of the West Oakland Club, has completed the card that will be presented to the fans on the night of July 17 at the clubrooms at Eighth and Pine streets.

The show will open with a four-round contest between Cliff Lester of the Teamsters Union and Jack Carroll at 160 pounds. These boys will be followed by Billy Ryan of North Beach and Paul Pollock of the Western Club in a four-round bout at 170 pounds.

Lee Johnson of West Oakland, crack colored miller is down for a six-round set with a crack from Sacramento, Joe Azzadino by name. They will meet at 180 pounds.

Burney Fletcher and Jim Horner furnish the semi-final at 188 pounds, while Billy Weeks and Fritz Holland battle over the ten-round route at the middleweight limit, 168 pounds.

TEAMS OF SOUTHERN LEAGUE MAKE RECORD

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 6.—Two Southern league records, for some time at least, were made within a week when Mobile and Montgomery played an 18-inning game on Sunday, June 20, at Mobile, and Memphis pitchers held opponents scoreless for 47 innings, the ice being broken when Nashville scored a run in the second inning of the first game of Sunday's double header, off Kishner, in the only run scored by Nashville in the entire game.

The "first" run to open the slate by a team opposing Memphis since the sixth inning of the game with Chattanooga on June 20, the regular record set by the straight shut out in two innings of a game Saturday that was called owing to rain. Not more than one pitcher figured in any game. The world's record of 18 to 0 by Pittsburgh, which blanked opponents for 64 innings, at 18 to 0, was broken by Jones and Levy, too, has placed himself on record as saying that Welsh will never fight again. END IN SIGHT FOR HIGH-PRICED CARS

Standard Motor Car Manager Predicts Change in Policy of Buyers.

Marking the end of needless high prices for motor cars of the highest grade are Studebaker's in their advertising in this city have inaugurated a vigorous selling campaign and are attempting to prove that $2,500 is the maximum price it is necessary to pay for an automobile of the finest in material and workmanship.

The judicious automobile buyer will recognize that it is utter extravagance to pay more than $2,500 for a non-petrol valve motor now that the Silent Knight type has become a standard," said R. E. Martin, vice-president and general manager of the Standard Motor Car Company. "The public has a proper and consistent notion of the prices that should be paid for motor cars and we believe we exactly meet that need in the Standard Dayton Sedan."

"This car should establish the sum of $2,500 as the point where the limit of prudent buying ends and extravagance begins. From the earliest days of the industry there has been a strong feeling that prices of the very high-grade cars were needlessly high, and that it would only be a question of time when some manufacturer would achieve sufficient economy in engineering, purchasing, manufacturing and selling to meet the highest ideals at a reasonable price."

"In the Studebaker model of the Standard Dayton, the United States Motor Company believes that it has come nearest to the popular idea of quality cars, and that the great class of buyers who want the best in motors of standard design will quickly give evidence of how they feel on the price question."

AGITATION NEEDED FOR OPENING OF YOSEMITE

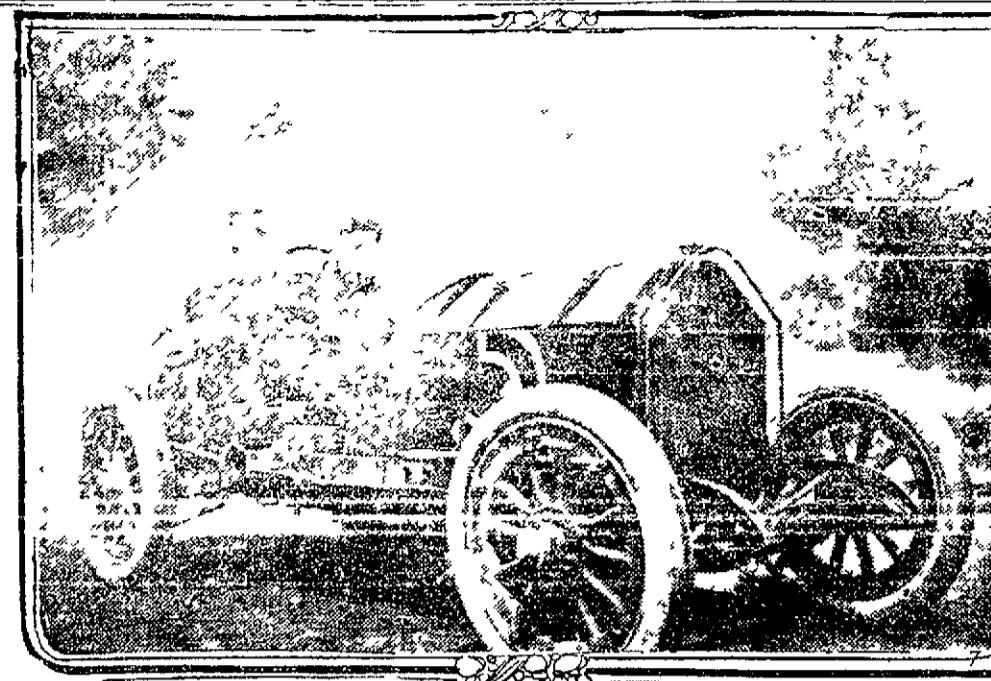

"The agitation now on foot to throw open to motor tourists the Yosemite will doubtless be successful as soon as the government realizes the overwhelming sentiment in favor of this project," says Frank S. Howard, manager of the Los Angeles branch of the Howard Automobile Company.

"The wonders of this show spot of the world-finding no rival in Switzerland—should be open to the ever-increasing throng of motorists. The efficiency of the modern good automobile makes such grades as are encountered there entirely safe for the trip, and save for the stage coaches, which are whispered, are responsible for the laggard consent of the government opening the reservation, no valid reason for the exclusion of the automobile can be given."

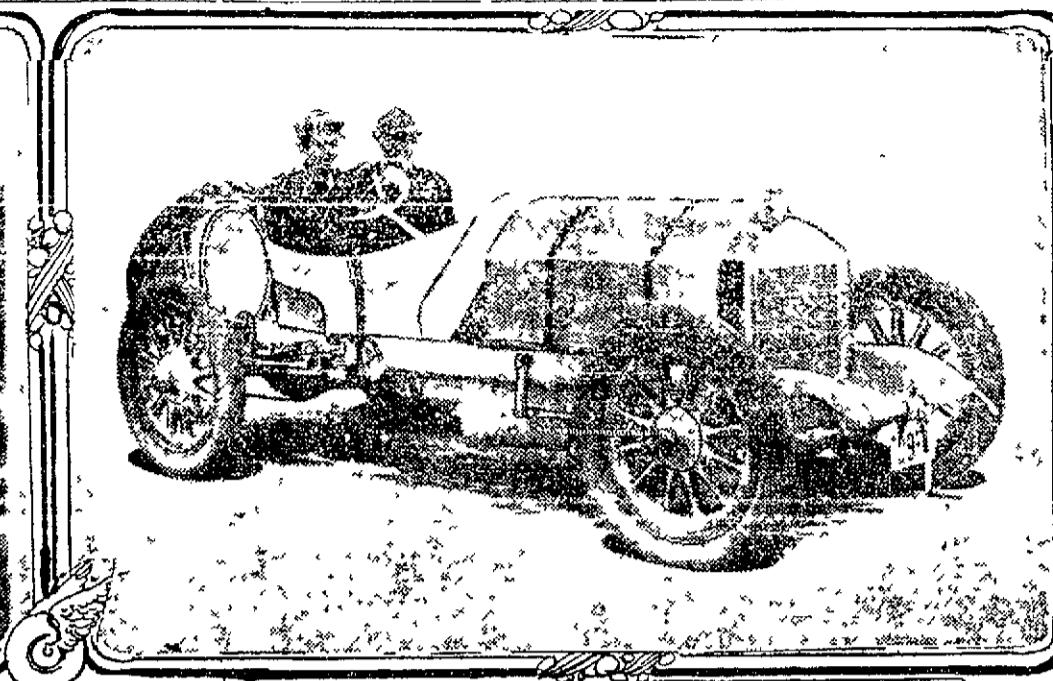

"Day by day the motor car is becoming a greater necessity to the modern American family, opening, as it does, new fields of health and recreation, and the addition of the Yosemites to the list of towns will do much to check the perennial hegira of Americans to Europe in search of scenic wonders inferior to those of our own country."

BAD SQUALL SINKS FOUR RACING SLOOPS

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., July 6.—During a bad squall while the annual regatta of the New York Yacht Club was drawing to a close, four racing sloops were struck by waves twenty feet high and sunk. The owners and their wives had narrow escapes. The Queen, the committee boat, owned by Rear Commodore W. B. Creasy, was near at hand and saved twelve persons.

RACE PILOTS BUY STUDEBAKER CARS

Dawson, Wilcox and Don Herr Take to Touring in E-M-F and Flanders Models.

To have for his very own to do with as he likes a light speedy, economical motor vehicle. The automobile has ceased to be a thing of luxury class," says Henry L. Hornberger, Pacific manager of the Oakland Motor Company.

"The motor car today is being purchased for its great value from an economy standpoint. The man of wealth who has his home in the country saves almost his living expenses between the taxes paid in the city and in the country.

"That this is true will probably surprise the average spectator of races, who usually pictures each of his heroes as a man at whose disposal are all the won-in the factory he represents on the track and the least of whose troubles would be

The fact is, in this case, point, to an entirely different conclusion. At any rate after the first International Sweepstakes at Indianapolis a year ago, several of the winning pilots went to the

Studebaker in Indianapolis and purchased E-M-F and Flanders cars. This year's race had a similar result.

Joe Dawson, winner of the race and

Howard Wilcox, his teammate, who won ninth prize, have both bought Studebaker E-M-F "20" cars. Don Herr, relief driver for Dawson, bought a third Studebaker E-M-F "20."

Hardly had the National team left the store when Harry Endicott,

AUTO OF TODAY IS ECONOMICAL

Has Ceased to Be a Luxury; Is a Time Saver and Business Maker.

"Few realize the vast economy of the motor vehicle. The automobile has ceased to be a thing of luxury class," says Henry L. Hornberger, Pacific manager of the Oakland Motor Company.

"The motor car today is being purchased for its great value from an economy standpoint. The man of wealth who has his home in the country saves almost his living expenses between the taxes paid in the city and in the country."

"He saves time that can hardly be measured in dollars and cents, for his automobile makes it possible for him to handle his business with a scope that before was impossible."

"The limitation of business engagements are ten times as great as heretofore. It makes it possible for him to handle enterprises that, for the lack of time before the coming of the motor car

he could not consider."

"Heretofore, he had to travel by traction car, railroads or horses with an impressionable mind that gave him the power to grasp severely business problems with a successful force."

"And so on down through every department of business from the proprietor to the salesmen and the drayage department, the automobile is showing its worth and economy, and it will not be long before not to own a motor vehicle will stamp one as not to be considered as a successful business man."

UNDERSUNG CAR CLIMBS PERPENDICULAR GRADE

Automobile honors, like polar honors, are about used up. An "American Tourist" last week won another And

McClain, driver for Senator Bill, of Sacramento took the machine from Bishop, on a perpendicular climb of 3756 feet, to Convict lake in Inyo county. The Scot was compelled to ditch stones and timber, but was determined to take an automobile where one had never been before. Convict lake is said to have taken its name from its difficult access.

"They could have called it solitary confinement, too," says And. "I don't meet as many travelers as one does in a cemetery."

ACCORD WELCOME TO PATHFINDER

Cities Along Route Now Travelled Are Keenly Alive to Significance of Run.

All of the cities and practically all of the villages along the first leg of the American Automobile Association's triple pathfinding trip are keenly alive to what the tour means to them. Through the eastern states the route of the "Pathfinder" car may over a well-established course, thence from Chicago by way of Milwaukee and across to St. Paul and Minneapolis.

From the twin cities, Mr. Westgaard's course will now be Fargo, then westward through North Dakota by way of Bismarck. The practical meaning of this official pathfinding tour is that those towns and villages which are fortunate enough to get on the route will gain a constantly increasing amount of through tourist business.

From Chicago the pathfinding party was piloted by President Dearolt of the Milwaukee Automobile Club, and President Ryerson of the Wisconsin State Automobile Association. Upon their arrival in Milwaukee they were met and welcomed by resident Louis of the Citizens' Business League. The latter is an organization whose members fully realize the great advantage of being on the transcontinental route, now that cross-country touring is becoming one of the most important forms of tourist business.

Across the state of Wisconsin the car was escorted by Messrs. Cannon of the Citizens' Business League and Secretary Drought of the Wisconsin State Automobile Association of the A. A. A. and secretary of the Chicago-Milwaukee Good Roads Association, which organizations are doing excellent work in developing the good roads sentiment. Minnesota is especially interested in the progress of the pathfinding car, inasmuch as this transcontinental route will reveal to the people of the East some of the beauties of Minnesota, of which its residents are justly proud. On that account the arrival of the pathfinding car in Minnesota was an event of unusual interest and considerable demonstration.

OLD PIONEER SALESMAN RETURNS TO MAIN OFFICE

The recent readjustment of the sales force of Pioneer Automobile Company, A. C. Wheelock, the former Fresno manager, returns to San Francisco as assistant manager of the main office and P. S. Cole is promoted to city sales manager.

Mr. Wheelock is one of the "old guard" in automobile business, having started as salesman in 1888 with the old Sunset Company. He went with the Pioneer Automobile Company in 1905, opened its Oakland branch in 1906, and a branch in Fresno in 1908, which place he has conducted up to the present time. Mr. Wheelock, in addition to his experience, has the advantage of a technical education, and his return to the "Row" was welcomed by all the old-timers in the business.

"The season just closing" said Whee- lock, "has been the most prosperous in the annals of our company. We have just passed the 500 mark for California deliveries. There is not only plenty of work for me in San Francisco, but I wanted a home here before retirement," he added.

The automobile industry now ranks third in the United States, and no one can even guess what another few years may bring forth. In any event, California is destined to lead the world as a user of motor cars. Our state road scheme is now being actively aided by the different counties issuing bonds to provide the necessary lateral roads. Before 1915 arrives, California will be called the "State of Boulevards" and of such a varying character is our scenery and such places that the whole world will come here to motor."

GIRL STRIKES ANIMAL; FACES BATTERY CHARGE

NEW YORK, July 6.—Rose Bachar, 17 years old, of 1871 East Avenue was sent to a cell in the East One Hundred and Fourth Street station on the unique charge of assault and battery on a horse, in that "she did wilfully, maliciously" and so forth "punch said horse in the eye."

The girl is a domestic in the home of Nathan Cohen, a painter, at 1871 Third Avenue. Cohen brought the horse up in front of his shop and as it was some what skittish asked Rose to come out and hold it.

The animal stood steadily until some children came along and began to tease it and it started plunging. Rose yelled when, repeatedly, then, according to witnesses, hung a chandelier, broken in its left eye. John Lantz of 1st Park One Hundred and Ninth Street and Frank Briner of 48 East Plaza's Eighth Street were passing and when led to the scene, found a woman holding a

Studebaker
Flanders "20"

Forget the nameplate—and still the car stands pre-eminent

If it bore no nameplate—the Studebaker Flanders "20" would be bound to make an immediate and an impressive appeal to your preference.

If it had no reputation—your sense of value would instantly recognize the wonderful money-worth of the car.

If it had enjoyed no sales-success—a demonstration of its splendid response to every normal, or even abnormal demand, would drive you straight to the decision that your $800 could not be better expended.

Study it from any of the ordinarily accepted specification standards—motor-measurement, power, wheel-base, axle-strength, ease, style—and rivalry, in its class, recedes into the remote background.

But you are not asked to draw a check for $800 on the evidence of your own eyes; or your own experience; or your own sense of value.

The Studebaker "20" will speak for itself on that close-range inspection which should precede a purchase—but another voice speaks to you in its behalf, louder and more impressive still.

Seventy-five thousand of your fellow citizens vouch for Studebaker value.

And we would like you to feel the impact of that tremendous pressure of public opinion.

We would like you to summon up a mental picture of that mighty host of Studebaker cars rendering yeoman service in every nook and corner of the nation.

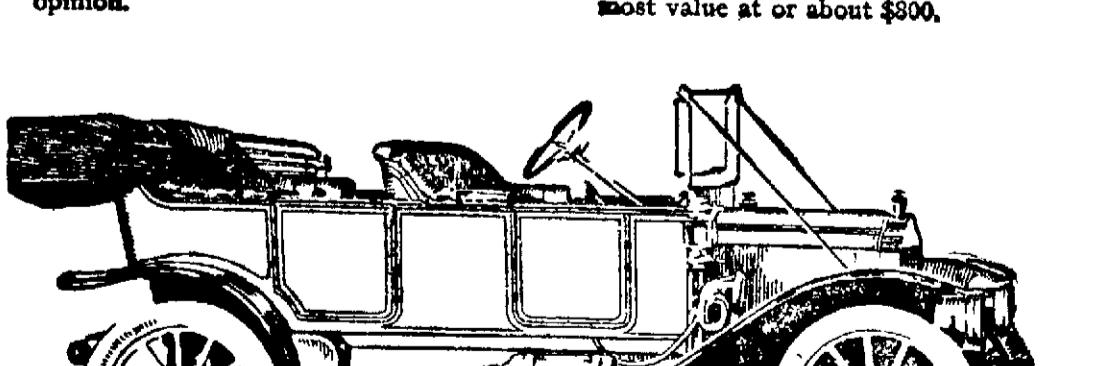

We would like you to remember that the satisfaction of these 75,000 citizens has its source in the name Studebaker.

We would like you to realize that each and every one of these 75,000 cars does its full duty, day by day, precisely because it is a Studebaker car.

The Studebaker "20" which you buy and drive is the embodiment and the expression of the sixty-year-old Studebaker policy of serving its public.

We want you to remind yourself that the Studebaker word has been good as gold to the buying world for more than a century—and that it is being made good in every car that issues from the mighty Studebaker plants.

The globe-girdling sales system of the Studebaker Corporation—the 1,800 Studebaker stores in America—the superb laboratory and manufacturing equipment in the Studebaker plant—and the low cost of production and distribution which they involve—in these factors you find the reason why the Studebaker "20" lays immediate hold upon your preference—why it appeals to you as the very uttermost value at or about $800.

THE STUDEBAKER CORPORATION,

A. A. A. CONTEST BOARD MAKES SEVERE RULING

Dealers Suspended for Violation of Rules and Officials Are Punished for Actions at Los Angeles

At a meeting of the contest board, held at A. A. A. national headquarters, Tuesday, June 25, at which were present the following members of the contest board—H. W. Knights of Boston, F. D. Folwell of Philadelphia, David Beecroft of Chicago, Joseph H. Wood of Newark, William Schlimpf, chairman—the following action was taken:

For advertising the performance of the No. 4 Stutz car which won the 50-mile race at Rockingham Park, Salem, N. H., on June 8, 1912, as being the performance of "an absolutely stock car," the Empire Motor Car agency, of Boston, Mass., agents of the Ideal Motor Car Company of Indianapolis, manufacturers of Stutz cars, were disqualified and suspended to January 1, 1913. The race in question was run under the rules and with the sanction of the contest board, as a class "B" special non-stock event, and was open to any motor car with a piston displacement of under 600 cubic inches.

Rule 75A of the 1912 contest rules prohibits the advertisement of the performance of a motor car in a sanctioned event as being the performance of a "stock" car unless such performance is made in a contest regularly sanctioned for and open only to registered "stock cars" or "stock chassis."

These two races were not restricted to "stock cars" and no technical examination by the A. A. A. technical committee of cars competing in these stock events to ascertain whether they check up with the awards, and upon a complete technical specification on file with the contest board, as is required under the contest rules in those events which are open only to "stock cars" or "stock chassis."

TIME NOT ACCEPTED.

The formal application for reinstatement to good standing of Walter Clark of Fort Worth, Texas, who participated in unsanctioned track meetings at Waco, Texas, in 1911, was considered, and the board refused to reinstate him.

The following "official records" were allowed and accepted:

DOGGIE'S BARK EAR OF WOMAN

Has Different Tone for Bell, Phone, Butcher and Burglar.

ST. LOUIS, July 6.—Ever since Flossie, 9 years old, prevented a burglary at Mrs. Lizzie Stookey's boarding-house in Belleville, when every other house in the neighborhood was entered, Flossie has been the heroine of the block.

Flossie is a dog. She has the outward markings of a fox terrier, but fanciers say she is of mongrel blood. But while aspirations have been cast upon Flossie's ancestry, nobody has had anything disparaging to say about her mentality. On the other hand, it is considered truly remarkable.

A reporter interviewed her recently. He had to use an interpreter, of course. Mrs. Stookey did the talking for her, assisted by Mrs. Stookey's mother, Mrs. Mary Roeder. But in her own way, Flossie showed off in a manner that completely bore out her reputation for sagacity. She proved that she knew the difference between the door bell and the telephone bell and could distinguish between the knock of the grocer's boy and that of the butcher man.

Mrs. Stookey and Mrs. Roeder are both partially deaf. They called Flossie their "ears" whenever Flossie picked up their ears, wagged her stub of a tail excitedly and barked at each woman in turn.

"She's showing us she's flattered," said Mrs. Roeder.

"Why, her ears are as plain as words to me," added Mrs. Stookey. "When it's the door bell she gives a long, shrill bark. When it's the phone bell she gives a shrill, snappy bark. Neither mother nor I can hear either bell, but both of us can hear Flossie's bark and both can tell just what she means."

At the point Flossie turned anxiously towards the kitchen door and let out a racing yelp that had an unmistakable snarl in it.

"Lizzie, there's the boy with the gun," said Mrs. Stookey, turning to the reporter, she added: "Flossie never did like that boy!"

In a few seconds there was a rap at the kitchen door. Mrs. Stookey admitted a grinning youth with a hamper of groceries. While the boy was unloading the hamper Flossie watched him as if she longed for a good mouthful from some part of his body. Then she gave another yelp of an entirely different note and started for the front door.

"Lizzie, here's the butter man!" said Mrs. Roeder. And the butter man it proved to be.

The dog's two mistresses then expounded Flossie's many graces. They said she knew all the boarders and recognized every boarder there, but that she had nothing to do with strangers.

Once when a pipe burst in the bathroom Flossie ran into the kitchen, shrieking with excitement, they said, and led them to the bathroom in time to shut off the water and avert serious damage.

That night the burglar robbed other houses in the neighborhood, they said.

Flossie kept barking until some of the boarders talked of murdering her. When they learned next day of what she had done, however, the boarders penitently showered good things to eat upon the dog.

There is one thing that completely terrifies Flossie. And that is an empty stocking. Show her one and she will run away to her basket as if she had seen a ghost. Mrs. Stookey explained:

"When she was a pup she tore up a pair of stockings for me. I gave her a round whipping and ever since then she has been in mortal terror of a stocking."

Just when they make the deposits they are finally formed into a globe of glowing color, how often they can be expected to produce a finished article and other equally important factors remain to be determined by long and carefully directed observations. The belief grows, however, that under the right conditions and conducted on a large scale, pearl-making with the assistance of abalone might become a commercial industry.

"Then, too, said the elephant in mass tones, "these stains, which measure from one square foot to 100 square feet, have been examined by others, all of whom look wise, write a ruler and such words as 'so far as I can see,' so far as I can see. Anyway, we are not getting a square deal and if they don't do something before long I'll have to organize a strike among the union members of the elephant house."

DANGER IN LEAVING SMALL ARTICLES IN TIRES

In fitting an inner tube care should be taken that nothing remains in the envelope. Tire men not infrequently suffer criticism for supplying inferior tubes, when the fact is that it is the motorist who is at fault. A Michelin tire expert says that frequent owners leave dust caps, washers and other articles inside an envelope and then complain when the inner tube pinches from "an apparent cause" after a few miles of traveling.

Keep tire caps and other parts removed for the fitting of the tube. If the tube is cut, the outer tube may be used.

ONE SHOT WHEN PAIR PLAY HOSE

Two Try to Eject Man From House and Ejected Shoots.

ST. LOUIS, July 6.—Carlyle Schnell, son of Mrs. Paulina Schnell of the Lucerne Apartments, Taylor and McPherson avenues, tried to force Charles Hahn Jr. from a house his mother owns at Carlyle, Ill., early Thursday with a stream of water from a fire hose. As a result, Thomas Thalls, who aided him, is in a Calvary hospital with a bullet wound in his left leg and Schnell is out of jail on bond.

The Schnells have been in legal difficulties with Hahn, who is secretary of the Carlyle Milling Company. Mrs. Schnell sought to get Hahn to move, and he refused to vacate. Young Schnell's mother was shot.

A reporter interviewed her recently. He had to use an interpreter, of course. Mrs. Stookey did the talking for her, assisted by Mrs. Stookey's mother, Mrs. Mary Roeder. BROADWAY WILL BE

BUICK 35 PROVES FUTURE HOME OF AUTOS

Many Firms Are Moving Out
There: Unknown Company
Building at 24th Street.

Out on Broadway, at Twenty-fourth street, a building is going up with all the speed the contractors in charge can bring to bear. Prominently displayed on one corner is a sign to the effect that a prominent automobile firm will occupy the premises on the completion of the structure. Which same has brought about a discussion of the probable future tenancy, name, by the way, unknown.

Any number of dealers there are who are planning to locate out on Broadway within the next year. Most of them and their future movements in this respect we are already aware of. In this case, however, an air of mystery prevails. No one seems to know, and every one connected with the motor car business is anxious to find out who the firm is who intend enclosing themselves from the somewhat congested automobile row.

As the months roll by, the wisdom of the present unknown company should become more apparent. Broadway seems to be the haven for housing new firms connected with the motor car trade.

"DETROITER" TO HEAD CADILLAC PARADE

A great automobile parade is to be held in Detroit during the last week of July as one of the features of the annual Cadillac celebration, which is destined to become a yearly event. In this parade more cars will have been assembled in one place than ever before in the history of the automobile industry. It is estimated that more than $25,000,000 worth of machines will take part in this procession, headed by a "Detroiter" car donated by the Briggs-Detroit Company as a prize to the individual who secures the greatest number of subscriptions to the Cadillac fund. Behind this car will follow thousands upon thousands of others, making a procession miles in length, which will require several hours to pass any given point.

BABY CAMEL GETS 'JAG'; NOW HAS TAKEN PLEDGE

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 6.—"Getch," the baby camel at Krug Park zoo, has signed the pledge. This is the result of recent jag. For years "Mollie" and "Pet," parents of "Getch," have been

St. Joseph's contribution to the attractions of the Imperial carnival of the Shriners. For years they have drawn the imperial potentate and his retinue, riding in a buggy. This year the baby camel made his first trip on a Shriners' special when taken to Los Angeles.

Some one tilted a bottle of beer to "Getch's" mouth. He drained it. More bottles followed. Being a camel, "Getch" was able to store away about a barrel of beer, just like his ancestors on the desert stored water when making a long trip.

"Getch" took a nip at the ear of Rudolph Bell, his keeper, who boxed the camel's ears. "Getch" retaliated by kicking him. There was a near riot on the baggage car until "Getch" had sobered down.

They tried to give "Getch" ice water. He scorned it, but accepted more beer. When Los Angeles was reached the crowd saw a tipsy camel cake-walking down the street. On the return trip they tried to give "Getch" another drink. He declined. When he reached home he rushed for the pond where he usually drinks.

We sent men to a plant which deals with old rubber. They examined thousands of ruined tires, of nearly every make.

And they found that 23 per cent of the old-type tires—of the clincher tires—were rim-cut.

Some were slowly wrecked by running soft. Some were wrecked in a moment by running flat.

Two Workers Badly Injured and May Lose Eyesight as Result.

RICHMOND, July 6.—G. A. Flemming and C. R. White, employed for some time in the acid plant of the Standard Oil refinery here, were seriously injured today when one of the big acid pipes broke in the vicinity where they were at work, sending them sprawling to foot with a stream of sulphuric acid which gushed out in several places from the broken pipe. The acid is used in the refining of the petroleum products of the plant and thousands of gallons are used every twenty-four hours. Both men were severely burned about the face, head, shoulders and hands and were rushed to the Abbott Hospital, where medical aid was rendered at once. The burns will leave them scarred for life, but it is too early yet to tell whether their eyesight will be ruined or not. They are swathed in bandages and kept in darkened rooms.

BIG HOTEL PLANNED TO BUILD AT RICHMOND

RICHMOND, July 6.—A. It will be built of brick construction and cost in the neighborhood of $40,000. Burns will erect such a building and equip it for the hotel business if he can secure a license for the bar, and that is a matter not to be taken for granted, as the council is not issuing any new saloon licenses to anybody. Burns may possibly buy a license from somebody already holding one.

United States Bureau of Mines
Cuts Down Mortality Among Workmen.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—That the high tide in the terrible death rate in American coal mines has been breached and passed is the confident belief of the officials of the United States Bureau of Mines.

Pictures issued today by the bureau show that 2137 men were killed in the mines last year as against 2334 for 1910. This shows a reduction in the number of lives lost of 317 in one year's time. The death rate in 1910 was 3.91 men in every 1000 employed. That rate in 1911 was 3.71.

Coal miners in 1907, the darkest year in the history of American mining, when 3197 men lost their lives, 1911 shows a decrease of 650 in the number of men killed. It was following the record of this year that Congress authorized the government to begin investigations looking toward a reduction in the death rate and this was supplemented in 1910 by the creation of the Bureau of Mines.

It was early in 1908 that the federal government began its investigation of the causes of mine disasters following the climax of accidents in 1907. The record for 1907 and the following years is as follows:

1907, thirty-one hundred and ninety-seven men killed, or 4.88 in every 1000 employed.

1908, twenty-four hundred and forty-nine killed, or 3.84 in every 1000 employed.

1909, twenty-six hundred and sixty-eight killed, or 4 in every 1000 employed.

1910, twenty-eight hundred and thirty-four men killed, or 3.91 in every 1000 employed.

1911, twenty-five hundred and seventeen men killed, or 3.74 in every 1000 employed.

TO HONOR FOUNDER OF MODERN ZION

Herzl Memorial Services Are Postponed Until Next Sunday.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—The date of the memorial services to be held here to commemorate the death of Theodore Herzl, founder and leader of the modern political Zionists, has been postponed to Sunday evening, July 14, from July 7, the date originally set. Exercises will be held at Temple Beth Israel in Geary street and will be conducted under the auspices of the Agudath Zion Society of this city.

The speaker of the evening will be Rabbi M. S. Levy. He will be introduced by Gus C. Binselsky, chairman of the evening, who himself will deliver an address on the significance of the occasion. In addition to the literary services, there will be a musical program under the personal direction of Cantor J. Rabinowitz.

Theodore Herzl died in July, 1904, and each year the anniversary of his death is observed by the local Zionist society. Herzl was the first to put into concrete form the aim of the modern Zionists to establish in Palestine a legally secured home for the Jewish people, thus reviving their identity as a nation.

A number of colonies of Israelites now prosper in Palestine as a result of the movement which Herzl founded, and which he led during his lifetime.

A committee consisting of the following has charge of arrangements for the memorial services. G. C. Ringolday, Harry K. Wolff, J. Weinen and the Misses Ada Edens, S. R. Nathan, S. Glaser and B. Becker.

HURLS VINEGAR CRUET AT HER TORMENTOR

SAN DIEGO, July 6.—For striking William Haberstadt, a waiter in a Seventh-street cafeteria, with a vinegar cruet, after enduring his taunts as long as she could, according to her statement, Mrs. Mary McDonald cheerfully paid a $10 fine yesterday afternoon in the police court.

Mrs. McDonald, who was also employed at the cafeteria, claimed that Haberstadt had been annoying and taunting her until she resigned her position on account of him. As she was drawing her pay Haberstadt, it is alleged, laughed at her. She struck him full in the face, with a crust, leaving marks that will remain for some time.

Haberstadt weighs about 200 pounds, while Mrs. McDonald is a small woman, but appeared, pleaded guilty and willingly paid the money, saying her revenge was worth it.

DIOMEDE ISLANDERS ARE CERTAINLY SPOOKY

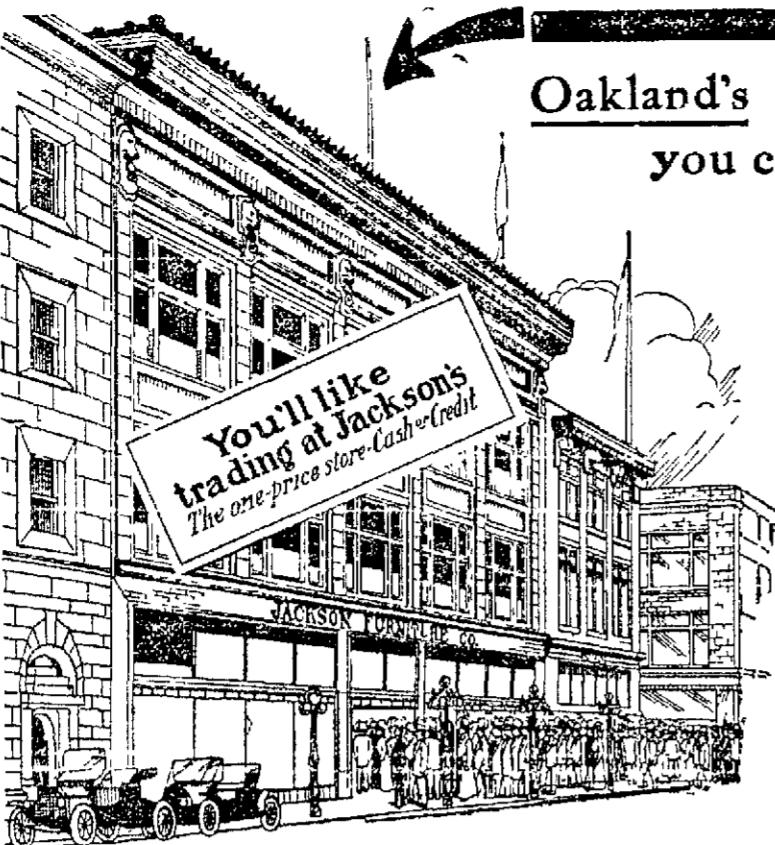

WASHINGTON, July 6.—The most superstitious natives in Alaska are the Diomedes Islanders, according to the teacher who is in charge of the government school maintained by the state bureau of education at that point. Along with their belief in witch doctors and ghosts, they used to believe that they could not wash when the north wind blew, nor comb their hair till the south wind came. Through the efforts of the bureau of education's officials these superstitions are gradually fading away.

HOW TO DESTROY THE DANDRUFF GERM BY A SPECIALIST.

The dandruff germ is responsible for nearly all the diseases to which the scalp is heir, as well as for baldness and fact, it is when we realize that it is also indirectly responsible for many of the various skin diseases and disfigurements, we appreciate the importance of an agent that will destroy its power. We are, therefore, particularly pleased to give here with the prescription which an eminent dermatologist has found, after repeated trials, to compete very definitely with dandruff germs in from one to three applications.

The prescription is as follows: Take a microscope's glass and add a raw hen-pecked egg. Mix thoroughly and after stirring well have it ready for use. Apply this right and morning rubbing into the scalp with the fingers. If it is not performed in this manner it will not be effective. Mix thoroughly and after stirring well have it ready for use. NATIONAL FOREST LINES MODIFIED

New Presidential Proclamations Eliminate 275,000 Acres From Reserve.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—President Taft has just made considerable changes in national forests in Montana, Arizona, Nevada, Utah and California through presidential proclamations modifying the boundary lines. By these changes nearly 275,000 acres of land are eliminated from the forests, about 65,000 acres are added, and about 55,000 acres are transferred between two forests, while a new forest is created by the division of an old unit into two.

The net result is to bring down the total acreage of the national forests to about 187,400,000 acres, of which nearly 27,000,000 acres are in Alaska. To a considerable extent, however, the reductions so far as land actually owned by the government is concerned are based on an analysis in the national forests by the government's surveyors to compute a definite area of land which is not owned by the government.

The high water mark of the total national forest area was reached in 1904, when the forest boundaries included over 340,000,000 acres. It was then realized, however, that in making the examinations on which the presidential proclamations creating the national forests were based the work had not been rapid to insure in all cases the best boundaries. Sometimes land which should have been included was left out, while at other times land was taken in which was not yet suited to forest purposes. Consequently a complete re-examination and redefinition of the forest boundaries was planned, and as far as possible the new boundaries were based on the work done by the surveyors.

gas industry, the lumber industry, printing and publishing, steam railroad repair shops and steel works and rolling mills. The increase in the industrial importance of the city between 1904 and 1905 was due largely to the growth of the lumber, foundry and machine shop, bakery, brewing, printing and publishing, canning and preserving industries, these contributing 37.4 per cent of the total increase in value of all products for all manufacturing industries of the city during that period. The increase in the canning and preserving industry was particularly marked, the value of products in 1905 being fifteen times as great as in 1904.

DRINK habit; I was a heavy drinker, averaging over quart of whisky daily; tried many ways to reform, but with no success. The 4th is celebrated

And so is THE SKILLING COMPANY for their wonderful bargains.

That fine little ranch we advertised is sold. Twenty people tried to get it, but only one could have it. Now see here:

One and three-quarter acres right in Oakland, close to cars, high and slightly, good soil, 3-room cottage, well; will make fine little chicken and fruit ranch that will support any family and will constantly grow in value; can be had now for only $2500. Grab this if you know a good thing.

And if you want a strictly good investment go and look at that acre with our sign on it on south side of Foothill Boulevard, opposite 25th Avenue. Four-room cottage on it, would make 10 good lots, and we offer it for $5500. $1000 cash, balance easy.

We offer you a 6-room cottage on a finished street and car line, in good section, for $2200.

And we can sell you a 12-room house in Berkeley's best residence section on a 60-foot lot, beautiful surroundings, if snapped up at once, for $4800.

A half-acre in Fruitvale for $1600.

For the man looking for a good chicken ranch farther out we have equally good bargains; 17 acres, an hour and a half from Broadway, that is an ideal place. Owner must sell, so see us at once.

And for the investor for bigger money we can offer 140 acres adjoining the city limits of Oakland, a splendid subdivision proposition for small acreage or villa lots or for summer homes. We don't dare name the price in print, for you'd hardly believe it, but if you have $14,000, come in and talk to us or write, and you better put on a special delivery stamp to reach us quickly.
